They are Busy—in Berlin
Lasker Breaks the Rules
U. S.-Anglo-Jap?
Go to a Clinic
—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

A United States representative at Berlin reports fewer men out of work "because of increased activity in automobile, textile, iron machine branches of industry." That will interest workers and owners in these industries here.

Lasker, of the Shipping Board, never will be popular in Washington or in Wall Street. He does not play according to rules. When he finds that a shipping concern is made of air and water, bankrupt into the bargain, he tells everybody all about it. The rule is to ask "what is my share of the wickedness?" Simply to spoil everything just as the scheme gets nicely started is most gauche, and is not done here.

Japan will have 200 official representatives at least at the Washington disarmament conference, and they will be ABLE Japanese. There is "a certain condescension in foreigners," and some reason for it, when you consider how many thoroughly well-trained minds they can concentrate at any given point.

One intelligent observer at Washington predicts that out of the conference will come a tripleentente or working arrangement with England, Japan and this country, united in various ways.

It might be good for the United States, but the average American would be inclined to ask, "Who will hold the stakeholder?"

It would be excellent for England, Japan could insure England's empire, for a while, in Asia, and the United States would make a good insurance agent elsewhere. What Japan would get is not plain, except good company. But she would get something, she has not associated with intelligent England in vain.

France is rubbing her eyes, and French journalists are preparing articles with kick to them. It is announced that France will get not one cent of the first billion gold marks paid by Germany. The entire billion goes to England and Belgium. The temporarily discarded, once much used "perfidious Albion" epithet will be dug up. England says France must not expect any cash for a while; her share is charged against her profits from the Saar region. There is an entire after-the-war education waiting for France.

Miss Alice Robertson, of Oklahoma, only woman in Congress, is opposed to the maternity bill which would use government money to help women in childbirth.

Perhaps Miss Robertson, like many men opposed to the bill, has never witnessed childbearing.

She and the other opposing Congressmen ought to offer their obstetrical clinic. It would let in light. They would favor ten maternity bills next day, and thank God that fate had made them observers of maternity, only.

"United States stands aloof in plan to help starving Russia," says the headline. Perhaps some one has heard details of one other American effort to supply Russia with food. We were trying to help the Czar's friends, or some one to beat Bolshevism, and thought food would assist. We sent shiploads of food to the Baltic, and there it peacefully rotted. Flour wet, chocolate spoiled and dumped. And our highly efficient representatives accepted in payment worthless, comical counter-revolution Russian roubles, printed—as many as you please—on a British destroyer. In Russia this country has made as many kinds of fool of itself as anybody could desire.

What became of the $30,000,000 in comic-opera Russian money printed for American consumption on board a British warship?

The Czar of Russia, you will remember, decided to increase efficiency by abolishing vodka and all alcoholic drinks. It worked and he was about the first unnecessary expense to be eliminated.

Now the Bolshevik government decides to permit the making of wine with not more than 14 per cent. of alcohol. "Let the people dance and drink that they may forget their misery." is still good advice, when in trouble, for those in power.

Five hundred million dollars a year is the Bolshevik government's credit to officials. It is more money, even, than the government made as whisky's legal partner. With such profits to be had it is perfectly safe to predict that bootlegging, rum-running, etc., will continue indefinitely. "What would you do for $5,000?" Weber used to ask his partner, Fields. And the answer was: "I'd be ashamed to tell you." What do you suppose criminals, protected by bribery and public indifference, would NOT do for $500,000,000?

Lloyd George tells De Valera that no British dominion will ever be permitted, under any circumstances, to separate from the crown.

Never is a long word. England herself may do without a crown, and probably will before this century ends. And before very long Canada will be, by sheer force of territory and resources, a nation

BROOKLINE WOMAN IS VICTIM OF THEFT

Milk Street Bond Salesman Held on Complaint of Mrs. Ella Flagg

Eldren A. Mitchell, of No. 17 Hawkes street, Marblehead, a twenty-six-year-old bond salesman, was arrested today charged with the larceny of $25,505 in gilt-edged securities from Mrs. Ella Flagg, a young and aristocratic widow of Brookline.

Mrs. Flagg is both stylish and pretty, and when she appeared at police headquarters was dressed in deep mourning.

Mitchell, good looking, well educated and affable, has been working for a Milk street firm.

The police decline to make public the name of this concern as they say it has not appeared that the company is mixed up in the deal.

It is charged that the bond salesman ingratiated himself into the graces of Mrs. Flagg and induced her to confide to his care certain securities she owned.

Stocks in the Western Union, Bell Telephone and Westinghouse companies were included in the list.

Mitchell promised her much quicker and more impressive returns from some stock which he was to buy for her, police allege.

When the time came for either the stock or a dividend to be forthcoming the young widow is understood to have demanded an accounting, which was not to be had.

She then made complaint to the police and Inspectors Connolly and Loughlin made the arrest.

Mitchell, according to information in the hands of his prosecutors, was introduced to Mrs. Flagg by another woman of equal wealth and social prestige.

This woman is to be interviewed to find out whether she, too, was victimized.

It is believed at headquarters that other victims will be found when the fact that Mitchell is under arrest comes to light, and that possibly it will be found that the enterprising bond salesman had accomplices.

In that case other arrests will be made.

Flynn was sentenced to the Concord Reformatory, but appealed and was held in $5,000.

Mary Miles Minter Denies Engagement

Popular Movie Actress, Home from Paris in Long Skirts, Scoffs at Rumor. "Droll," She Says.

MARY MILES MINTER

New York, Aug. 16.—Mary Miles Minter engaged? Not so she can notice it, if her own words are to be believed.

The movie actress, back from Paris in long skirts, said today she was more interested just now in her books and an offer to go on the legitimate stage than in affairs of the heart. She has been reported engaged to a Frenchman, a Chicago society man, a commander in the American navy and a poet. The navy man hopes it is true. The poet says he was, but isn't.

As for Mary, she said:

"I thought it droll at first, but it is becoming embarrassing. Indeed, I'm not engaged at all."

Going into the philosophy of it all she asserted:

"I know better than to seek happiness. Happiness comes to us or it stays away. It isn't ours to command. Happiness will come to me, I'm sure, but unsought. What do I seek, then, if not happiness? Why, security.

"That is within my power to obtain. And by security, I mean a house and flower garden and beautiful things, a place for my 4,000 books and for my pictures, and a wonderful bath, a very beautiful bath, where there are coarse wash rags with crocheted edgings or heavy towels. I like silk wash towels and exquisite embroidered fine linen. And most of all are my books to me.

"I'll say one thing however, the man I marry I will love. And it will be really love.

"I won't make a mistake. And I shall know when he comes. No matter how many times the mere words, 'I love you,' are said, and the many ways and times they are said, when my Prince Charming comes, riding and I hear him say them, there will be something so genuine that I will know immediately."

COOLIDGE AND LODGE AID FUND

Wire Support and Contributions in Drive to Help Cuneo Family

Vice-President Coolidge and United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge today heartily indorsed the Boston American Cuneo Fund, being raised to help the widow and nine children of Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo of the Hanover street station, who was shot to death on Saturday by former Patrolman Philip F. Whelan.

Coolidge, who won the second highest office in the nation on a "law and order" platform, says "Officer Cuneo died on the firing line of civilization." He aired his indorsement from Woodstock, Vt., where he and his family are spending a vacation and sent along a contribution of $25. His telegram read:

Woodstock, Vt., Aug. 16.

"Editor Boston American:

"Officer Cuneo died on the firing line of civilization. For the great sacrifice he made to protect us and our families let us join in making a small sacrifice to protect his family. Here is $25.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

From Washington came the following telegram from Senator Lodge:

"Am glad to give my indorsement to the Cuneo Fund. Am sending check today.

"H. C. LODGE."

The amount of Senator Lodge's contribution will be announced later. The fund totaled $1,999 at an early hour today, not including the Lodge

FIVE REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD AID CUNEO FUND

BECAUSE—

Andrew B. Cuneo met death while serving you and yours in the cause of civilization.

His widow and nine children will be in real need unless YOU help the fund.

The whole police force, from Commissioner Curtis, who has contributed $100, down to the last-joined patrolman, needs your assurance that the public is back of any officer who fearlessly does his duty even in the face of death.

Vice-President Coolidge, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman Louis A. Frothingham, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, F. W. Stearns and others, men and women, equally prominent, are aiding the fund.

And, lastly, BECAUSE—

You owe Patrolman Cuneo a real and abiding debt for the great moral lesson in loyalty to one's duty even to the death.

The shipment of food, medicines and clothing into Russia can now begin immediately.

Walter L. Brown, director of the American relief administration in Europe, has ordered virtually the entire personnel of the Budapest and Vienna staffs to proceed to headquarters at Riga at once.

Harvard Man Describes Conditions in Russia

By International News Service.

Reval, Aug. 16.—A graphic picture of Russian prison life where men and women were herded together in small cells and condemned prisoners were stripped naked and executed in the middle of the night while a motor truck was driven up and down the prison court yard to drown the noise of the firing was painted here today by Captain Weston R. Estes, of New York, one of the six released Americans who came out of Russia last week.

Another American, Emmett Kilpatrick, said that when he was released from prison the Soviet officials informed him that the Moscow government had declared general amnesty.

Henry J. La Marc, another of the captives, said that the Russians were not hostile towards the United States but that 90 per cent. of them are pro-German because they believe that close relations with Grmany are the only salvation for the country.

The six Americans were found to be in good condition but were anxious to forget their hardships and either

De Valera Quotes Lloyd George on Freedom

By International News Service.

Dublin, Aug. 16.—"We mean to fight for our principles; we mean to die for them if necessary," declared Eamon De Valera, head of the Sinn Fein government, in opening the session of Dail Eireann today.

De Valera quoted from a speech by Premier Lloyd George regarding the freedom of small nations. De Valera continued: "Premier Lloyd George told the American soldiers that they were fighting for the principle of independence and that when they came to Europe they were fighting for the liberty of small nations.

"The principles that Lloyd George expressed on that day are ours."

MILITARY ORDERS ISSUED

British Soldiers Mobilized as Dail Eireann Assembles at Dublin

By Associated Press.

London, Aug. 16.—All soldiers on leave from Ireland in Aldershot and Farnborough have been ordered by telegraph to return to their regiments immediately.

Immediately on promulgation of the truce in Ireland large groups of soldiers were granted leave of absence in England.

A Belfast dispatch of Monday quoted the Irish News, the Nationalist organ, as claiming to have unquestionable authority for stating that the British government's preparations for a renewal of the conflict in Ireland, consequent on the possible abrogation of the truce which has existed since July 11, had been speeded up within the past three days to such an extent that they were practically completed.

By Associated Press

Belfast, Aug. 16.—It is reported here that the military authorities in Ireland have cancelled all leaves of absence for both officers and men, and that all officers and men who are away on holidays have been recalled. It is stated this step was taken merely as a precaution against surprise and has no other significance.

Dail Eireann Hears Freedom Plea

Dublin, Aug. 16.—In opening the Dail Eireann at the first public session here today Eamon de Valera, the Republican leader, reiterated Ireland's claim for separation from Great Britain and declared the only government the people recognized was the ministry of the Dail Eireann, the Irish Republican Parliament.

He and his colleagues, the head of the Republican Cabinet said, had adopted towards England the principles laid down by Cardinal Mercier of Belgium towards Germany—the principle that external authority was unlawful. The Irish, he said, stood for the ideals enthroned in the American Declaration of Independence.

Mr. De Valera provoked laughter by describing the British attitude as that of a great nation demanding guarantees for its safety from a small one, when it should be a big nation guaranteeing safety to a small nation.

TO SAVE BLOODSHED.

The Cabinet has sent the reply it did. Mr. De Valera declared, because it did not think the British proposals were just.

Mr. De Valera pointed to the virtually impossible conditions surrounding negotiations with the British government, for the position, he said, was that of a man unarmed facing a man pointing a pistol.

There were people who wanted to negotiate to save their faces, he continued, but the Sinn Fein would not negotiate to save faces, only to save, if possible, bloodshed and for right and principle.

When the Irish Parliament met today at the Mansion House, to consider the British government's Irish peace terms, there were 120 members present, including those who had been released from prison to admit of their attending the session.

A great audience crowded the gallery floor as De Valera led the members into the chamber.

Prayer was offered in Gaelic by Father O'Flannagan, and then the oath was administered to all the members en masse.

John T. Kelly was re-elected speaker of the Parliament, but he declined the office, and Professor John McNeill was chosen.

After the formalities had been concluded and Mr. De Valera, as head of the Irish republic governing body, had addressed the assemblage, the Parliament adjourned.

Mr. de Valera said that at tomorrow's session, besides recounting the negotiations between the Irish and British governments, he would in a general way give an account of his own department and that afterwards the other ministers would give accounts of their departments.

The proposed reply to Premier Lloyd George, continued the President, would be considered in private session. All understood the seriousness of the reply, he declared, as the British government intended to make it an issues of peace or war with the Irish nation.

After the reply was sanctioned and ready for dispatch there would be another public session of the Dail Eireann, Mr. De Valera continued. Further elections to office would occur, and then the Parliament would work upon the propositions to be advanced by the new Dail ministry.

He asserted that Ireland had at the elections virtually declared by plebiscite for a Republican government, not because the people were Republican doctrinaires, but because Irish freedom and independence could not at present be realized in any other way.

An outstanding feature of the session was the special applause for the fighting men. Michael Collins, commander of the republican army; Richard Mulcahy, the chief of staff, and Charles Burgess, the Minister of Defence, were cheered more heartily than Eamon de Valera himself.

The members in attendance included a half-dozen women, among whom was Countess Markievicz.

The scenes attending the opening of the Parliament were in striking contrast to those witnessed in Belfast when King George opened the Ulster Parliament. Dublin was not decorated as was Belfast, and, instead of squadrons of cavalry, a division of infantry and innumerable police, the only uniformed men to be seen on the streets were traffic officers.

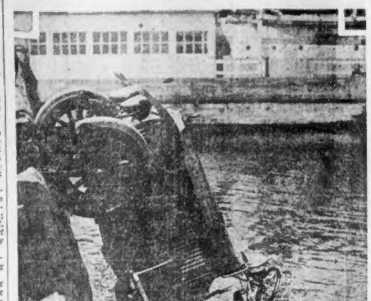
FRANK P. WALSH ENTERS.

The audience which assembled at the Mansion House occupied seats in the gallery and on the floor of the chamber around the square space in front of the dais, in which the 126 members who had accepted invitations to participate in the meeting occupied the battered arm chairs and sofas.

Over the dais was the coat of arms of the O'Neills, the clan of the present Lord Mayor—a red hand on a shield with a swimming fish beneath.

It was 11:15 o'clock when Mr. De Valera led the members into the chamber. He was accompanied by his ministers of the Republican cabinet, by Lord Mayor O'Neill and by Frank P. Walsh, his American legal adviser. The two latter took their seats to the right and left of the chairman, respectively. Cheers were given for the Republican leader and cheers for Walsh, when he was recognized.

BRIGHTON ENGINE AFTER 'DIVE' IN CHARLES RIVER



6-TON LA FRANCE MACHINE 'AT REST'

FIREMAN HURT AS ENGINE 'DIVES' INTO RIVER

Machine Attached to Brighton Station Backs Over Bank Near Cottage Farm Bridge

Reserve Pumping Engine No. 157, attached to fire station No. 81, Brighton, took a backward dive into the Charles river from the testing grounds at the foot of Bay State road, near the Cottage Farm bridge, while firemen were testing the apparatus today.

Arthur Johnston, driver of the machine, attached to chemical No. 11, Dorchester, suffered a sprained back as a result of the accident.

The engine, a gas pumping machine of the La France model, was being driven about a small space by the river while a detachment of firemen under Lieutenant Ryan were examining the pumps. Johnston backed toward the embankment, then turned to start the engine ahead again. For some reason the gears failed to shift and the huge automobile continued in reverse. Before Johnston could check its course the rear wheels had cleared the bank, poised for a moment in the air and then slid back into ten feet of water, coming to rest in a perpendicular position.

Other firemen swarmed the bank and helped Johnston to climb back to safety. The machine is standing on end, over half of its length projecting above water, the front wheels resting against the embankment wall.

Officials regard it as marvelous that the huge car did not turn over backward during its plunge. Had this happened Johnston would almost inevitably have been killed. The machine weighs six tons.

William Koslosa and his wife, Wanda, were fined $100 each for liquor law violations. James A. Curry of Capitol street, Newton, was assessed two $50 fines for keeping and exposing and selling liquor. BOY TRAPPED IN HALLWAY DIES OF BURNS

Mother in Locked Room Nearly Frantic at Inability to Aid Son

Trapped in a hallway beyond reach of rescuers who sought to extinguish the flames that enveloped him, fourteen-year-old Arthur Carroll suffered burns that resulted in his death early today at the East Boston Relief Station.

The lad had been playing with matches in the yard of his home, No. 202 Chelsea street, East Boston, when his clothing caught fire. Running to obtain the aid of his mother in the house, the breeze fanned the flames until he was enveloped in a sheet of fire.

Mrs. Carroll in an upstairs room, heard his screams and started to his aid. A door stubbornly shut, however, when a sudden gust of wind blew through the room, and held her a prisoner.

Guy Leoni, seventeen years old, of Border street, East Boston, was passing the house at the time. Hearing the victim's piteous screams he ran across the yard to the front door, but that also had slammed shut and automatically locked.

The mother, frantic at her inability to succor her son, tried to breakdown the door, but failed. Leoni finally managed to smash a glass panel in the front door, release the lock, and reach Arthur's side. He instantly removed his coat and smothered the flames, later releasing Mrs. Carroll, who collapsed.

The boy was hurried to the Relief Station, where efforts to save his life were unavailing. Leoni also required medical attention, as a result of cuts he sustained in breaking the glass panel.

VETERAN OF 3 WARS TO WED AT 70

Major Walter H. Thomas to Take 42-Year-Old Somerville Woman as Bride

His fifty-seven years of service in the regular army and the State militia sit as lightly on the shoulders of Major Walter H. Thomas, seventy years old, and until recently armorer at the State armory, Somerville, that he intends to be married Thursday afternoon.

The bride is to be Miss Frances Hamilton Givan, forty-two years old, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Margaret Morrell, at No. 26 Power street, Somerville. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. George Bruce Nicholson, rector of the Emanuel Episcopal Church, Somerville.

When the Civil War broke out Thomas ran away from home, enlisted in the Union army as a drummer boy and served through many battles of the conflict.

Later he enlisted in the Eighth Massachusetts Infantry and went to Cuba during the Spanish American War. He also served in the Philippines, and at the time of the Mexican trouble went to Texas with the Bay State contingent. Not satisfied with that when the World War came, Thomas again volunteered, though long past the age limit, failed to get in but" until the armistice.

He had known Miss Givan for twenty-odd years, having met her through her brother, with whom he served in Cuba.

His last his first wife three years ago, and became so lonesome that he appealed to Miss Givan to marry him. She agreed.

After the wedding they will go to Philadelphia and Washington and will live at No. 26 Power street on their return.

RAILMEN REJECT OFFER OF ERIE REPAIR SHOP

Marion, O., Aug. 16.—The offer of the Erie Railway Company, which yesterday took over the Erie Railroad shops here, to give employment to shopmen who were employed by the Erie Company up to the time of the transfer, was considered at a meeting of members of local shop crafts unions here last night.

No official announcement was issued, but members who attended said that it was decided by all present not to work for the new company excepting under the union rule which formerly prevailed in the shops.

The Railway Service Company, in taking over the shops under contract to do the Erie Company's repair work here, announced that the shops would be run in a manner similar to the large manufacturing plants at Marion, most of which were operated on the open shop principle.

DAUGHERTY RULES ON BUTTER ADULTERATION

Washington, Aug. 16.—Attorney-General Daugherty, in an opinion rendered to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today, held that butter manufactured from cocoanut cream, adulterated with water, is not adulterated butter and therefore not subject to a tax.

This opinion overruled a previous opinion by former Attorney-General Palmer and affects large stores of butter in the Middle West.

The Attorney-General stated, however, that this opinion would not open the door to the use of "filthy material" in the manufacture of butter.

Surrenders to Police in $8,000 Theft at Conscience Call

Harry Roy Wilson, 23 years old, former Hub bandsman, is under arrest in Baltimore charged with absconding with $8,000 from the U. S. S. Black Hawk, on which he was a mail clerk.

Wilson, who fled from the Black Hawk, mother ship of the destroyer flotilla at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, four months ago, surrendered voluntarily to the police, declaring that his conscience troubled him.

He made a detailed statement regarding his wanderings since leaving the ship, and boasted of having outwitted police and intelligence agents in a score of cities.

His admissions implicated a comrade, another confidential clerk, to whom he said he had given $4,000. He also claimed to have been robbed of $2,000 in Havana, and admitted spending the balance.

return home or reach England where luxuries are more plentiful than here.

Probably the best informed of the Americans on actual conditions in Russia was Lt. Ira Marcy. He is a graduate of the Harvard Law School of the class of 1891 and has lived many years in Russia, where he amassed a fortune.

"To be correct, there is not much less food in Russia now than there was last year, but it is unevenly distributed," La Marr said.

"In some districts the crops have failed, while in others the peasants, not having any confidence in the Bolsheviki, refused to give up grain. America should help Russia, but should insist upon full control of the work.

SEE GERMANY AS ALLY

"About 90 per cent. of the Russians are pro-German because they believe that Germany is their only salvation and also because Germany is the common enemy of Poland.

"While Russians lack the same enthusiasm for America they display for Germany, nevertheless the United States has no enemies in Russia. The Russians are looking towards the United States for business and Americans do not mix politics with business.

"The Russians are suspicious of England, whom they accuse of supporting the Baltic States in their separatist move. But America cannot do business so long as the Bolsheviks are in power unless they secure the very strongest guarantees. If America deals with the Soviet she will become unpopular for it believes that 95 per cent. of the Russians are hostile to the Bolshevik government."

Woman Writer to Tell "Inside" Life of Russia

Louise Bryant, famous newspaper correspondent, has just returned from Russia with exclusive, accurate information of life under Soviet rule. For a year she has been the only newspaper writer allowed by Lenin to travel through Russia. Her stories of what she actually saw and what Soviet chiefs told her will be supplied by Universal Service.

BY LOUISE BRYANT

New York, Aug. 16.—It was Maxim Lenin who said to me that American reporters never sat down to write about Russia without feeling that the story would not be worth the telling if it was not widely exaggerated. She illustrated her point by referring to a sleek old grey cat asleep in her lap and she talked. "Now my husband and I are both fond of animals, but because of the difficult times we do not find it possible or even right to keep a dog or a horse. We have one cat between us and yet how many times have you read that my husband has seven cats!"

It is not necessary to exaggerate about Russia to be interesting. The days are too swift and the life too stark and terrible to be dull.

I had headquarters in Moscow because I was sending radios through Berlin to New York, but I traveled all through the provinces from the extreme north to the south and I spent a month wandering through the middle east to see for myself how that new and important friendship between Turkey, Afghanistan, Bokhara and Persia with Russia was cementing.

In Moscow and Petrograd I interviewed every Soviet official of importance. Lenin I knew best and liked most. Many of my friends were not Communists and some were even Monarchists.

I was never "conducted," but always to go freely about. During the war I had two secret services. One was the daughter of a former rich Moscow merchant, and the other was a young woman who had been in the inner circles of the court.

Actors and painters and poets were my friends, and I lived some weeks with Helena Smachkova, the greatest actress in Russia. It was during a food crisis, and one of the richest experiences of my life was to watch Helena Smachkova through a superb performance of Juliet or Shakespeare and afterward go with her to her cold little flat, where she cooked kasha on a tin stove for a dozen hungry actors, every one of them famous.

I came to know that greatest of democratic institutions—a Russian train—and I met peasants and nobles and attended the All-Russian Congresses. I saw the schools and the prisons and the hospitals and talked to General Brusilov and Trotsky and Enver Pasha and Tikon, who is head of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Above and beyond all this I know what it is to be hungry and lost in an alien land and what it is to have a great sorrow. In short, I know Russia life as it is today and that is what I am going to write.

SEEKS PROBE IN SUICIDE OF BEAUTY

Mrs. Weiler Believes Threats of Editor Caused Mrs. De Brite to End Life

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—A complete investigation into the death of Mrs. Mary De Brite, former wife of a distinguished Brazilian and winner of several beauty contests, will be asked of Coroner Hoffman and the police, Mrs. Edward Weiler announced today.

Mrs. De Brite ended the life in Mrs. Weiler's home by turning on the gas.

It is believed that Mrs. De Brite took her life because of the threats made against her by the editor of a small magazine.

Several weeks ago Mrs. De Brite obtained a copy of the magazine while traveling on a train. She was so shocked by its contents that she wrote the governor of North Dakota, where the magazine is published, expressing her opinion that the publication should be suppressed.

Mrs. De Brite's letter to the Governor was forwarded by his secretary, it is said, to the editor of the magazine.

Soon after her return to Chicago, it is declared, Mrs. De Brite received a letter from the magazine editor. Later, a roughly dressed man called at the Weiler home and made inquiries concerning her.

Mrs. Weiler believes the letter and the man so frightened Mrs. De Brite, who was of a highly nervous temperament, that she took her life.

TURKEY'S POWER IN ASIA NOW MENACED

Must Seek European Aid to Win, Says Bulgarian Diplomat

By Associated Press.

Williamstown, Aug. 16.—Not only is Turkey in Europe a thing of the past, but Turkey in Asia will share the same fate unless the Turks "pocket their national pride and allow foreigners to assist them in the work of reconstruction," Stephen Panaretoff, Bulgarian minister to the United States, said in a lecture before the Institute of Politics at Williams College today. After tracing attempts made by the Turks themselves to bring about reforms, M. Panaretoff said:

"Whatever modifications may be made in the actually existing territorial arrangements of what was formerly called European Turkey, it is not to be presumed that Turkish authority will be re-established there. Empire from 1878 to 1908, and ever fruitful they have proved to be.

"The Ismid Minor there is still quite a large area of territory left to the Turks where their authority will be maintained. In this territory there will be a considerable number of Christians who need the protection against misrule and arbitrariness and their civil and political interests safeguarded. Will the Turks be able to organize and conduct their government so as to satisfy the Christians by securing to them real privileges and equal treatment? The past experience with Turkish promises does not inspire great confidence for the future.

"If the Turks, taught by the catastrophs that has befallen their empire, wish really to preserve within their present area of rule a few Christians frankly and sincerely apply to Europe for help to reorganize."

TURKS ACCEPT NEW PACT WITH FRANCE

Angora, Anatolia, Aug. 16.—The Turkish Nationalists have accepted the revised agreement with France, subject to slight alterations, it was announced here today. The text of the agreement was not made public.

The Turkish Nationalist Assembly rejected the original Franco-Turkish agreement, under which the French agreed to withdraw troops.

looking upon England as its interesting little European headquarters. The Isle de la Seine was about as far away from Paris when the fat Charles was King. Now Americans cross Henry the Fourth's bridge from the real Paris to see the Morgue, Notre Dame or the law courts, which show that the little island in the Seine was once important.

England will be eventually simply the European office of the British empire, if that empire outlasts a few generations. And it won't do that unless it turns history upside down. An overgrown empire is as certain to vanish as an overgrown dinosaur.

TAX BILL BLOW AT POOR, SAY DEMOCRATS

Measure Submitted to the House by Republican Majority

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Charging that the tax revision bill, prepared by the Republican majority of the House Ways and Means Committee, fails to give relief to "the poorer class of tax payers," the Democratic members of the committee voted solidly against the reporting of the bill today. The bill was formally reported out by the Republican majority.

The majority report on the bill, submitted to the House today, declares that tax revision is necessary to aid business in reaching a normal basis in the process of liquidation and adjustment going on now, but warns that strictest economy in government expenditure must go with the tax revision.

The majority report estimates that the bill reduces the tax burden by $790,350,000, approximately $7 per capita, over the tax of the year 1921.

The aim of the bill is to reduce taxes and not to shift the tax burden, the report declared.

Before reporting the bill the committee made the following changes:

The tax on net incomes of life insurance companies was reduced from 15 to 12½ per cent, foreign companies to be taxed upon their earnings in the United States, this tax replacing a tax of 8 cents on a hundred dollars formerly paid by the policy holder.

The tax on corporations to become effective January 1, 1922, was reduced from 15 to 12½ per cent.

The tax on cereal beverages was reduced from twelve cents a gallon to six cents a gallon.

The tax on capital assets was fixed at 15 per cent. on income from these assets above $4,000 annually.

The committee also provided that the treasury ruling for determining capital gain or loss shall be effective January 1, 1922, instead of being retroactive to January 1, 1921.

MINISTERS DECLINE TO ACT

By International News Service.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—Who will marry Julia French Geraghty and Howard T. Williams Wednesday at Mapleshade villa on Red Cross avenue? The hunt for a clergyman seems to have resolved itself into a game of battledore and shuttlecock as far as the Newport ministers are concerned.

The story is this: Early in the game the prospective bridegroom, Howard T. Williams, secured the services of a minister in Boston and thought the matter settled. Then Mrs. LeRoy French, mother of Julia, expressed the fear that a marriage ceremony performed by a minister from out of the State might not be legal.

It was because of this that Williams spent all of Sunday in Providence searching for a minister to tie the knot.

A justice of the Supreme Court may yet be asked if no regular minister can be found.

BRIDE WANTS MINISTER.

But Julia herself rather objects to this procedure, her friends say, and prefers a religious ceremony. The bride's mother also favors such a plan. It is said.

Newport ministers dodge the issue either by evading the question or by failing to reply at all when asked if they have been invited to perform the ceremony.

There is reason to believe that in some way or other the bride's mother Mrs. French has caused Newport to be thoroughly canvassed to find a minister willing to perform this ceremony.

FIRST CHOICE.

There is evidence that it was the first wish of the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. French, as well as Julia herself, to have the rector of the St. John's Episcopal Church on Washington street perform the ceremony, for that was where Pauline, another daughter, was married to Sam Wagstaff.

They learned without asking directly that Episcopal ministers would refuse to marry the couple and, it is understood, the rector was not approached.

2 BOYS IN STOLEN AUTO CAUGHT AFTER CHASE

Motorcycle Officer Patrick Adair, of Station 16, overtook and arrested Morrison Veyett, nineteen years old, of No. 220 Neponset avenue, Neponset, and Paul Tarpley, nineteen, No. 46 Winthrop avenue, Roxbury, for alleged larceny of an automobile, following a wild chase through the Fenway, Commonwealth avenue and Harvard avenue, Allston.

The motorcycle officer reeled along at a forty-five-mile-an-hour gait before he caught up with the unsuspecting youths, who were speeding away in a powerful touring car of Arthur O'Neil, No. 409 Columbia road, Dorchester. They brought the stolen machine to a stop at the officer's command, and offered no resistance.

In court later they pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to next Monday, bail being fixed at $5,000 each.

"HUMAN FLY" CLIMBS TO AID VETERANS

$100,000 Left to Bill Haywood

WM. D. HAYWOOD

Chicago, Aug. 16.—William D. Haywood, I. W. W. leader, now sojourning in Russia, has come into a fortune of $100,000, according to information received by Charles F. Clyne, United States district attorney. This is one-third the estate left by Haywood's first wife, Jane Miner of Winnemucca, Nev.

A few years after their marriage Haywood is said to have deserted his first wife and was married to another woman, although not divorced. His second wife died and his first came into a fortune through her father, who was a wealthy farmer.

Under the laws of the State of Nevada, Haywood is entitled to one-third of the estate, as his wife left no will. The two children will receive two-thirds of the estate.

Clyne is interested in collecting the $15,000 fine assessed against Haywood.

See Love as King of All in World

Rev PERCY S. GRANT

New York, Aug. 16. — Love takes precedence over everything, according to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, pastor of the Church of the Ascension, who has reiterated his determination to marry Mrs. Philip M. Lydig, society divorcee.

In the face of a warning by Bishop Manning that he would undoubtedly be unfrocked, Dr. Grant made it known that he intended going ahead with his plans. The marriage of a twice-divorced woman violates one of the canons of the Episcopal Church.

It is understood that Dr. Grant and his bride will devote themselves to work in a forum similar to that the pastor organized in his parish house, which attracted much attention because of radical utterances.

Dr. Grant is a bachelor, some years older than his bride-to-be, who is known as the most distinctively dressed woman in America. Their romance is said to have grown out of the adoption by the clergyman of a girl waif who was left on his doorstep when but a few days old.

Mrs. Astor to Be Umpire for Day

Newport, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Vincent Astor is to be a baseball umpire—but for a day only. She has been chosen and has consented to take that position in the game between Newport city officials and a team representing the Summer colony.

This, however, will be the first time she has called "play ball." A year ago she was "assistant" umpire at a game for charity. The official umpire then was Rear Admiral Robertson.

IDENTIFIES GUN IN KENNEDY SLAYING

Stock of Weapon Found on Beach Sold by Pawnbroker After Burch's Arrival

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—In a meeting today between Arthur C. Burch, charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, and E. Rosenthal, a pawnbroker, who claims to have sold the gun with which Kennedy was slain, District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine believes the State will obtain evidence which will clinch its case against Burch.

Rosenthal was to be asked to identify Burch as the purchaser of the gun. Rosenthal has identified the stock of a double-barrelled shotgun found in the surf at Santa Monica the morning after Kennedy was slain as that of a weapon he sold to a man between July 25 and July 28.

The pawnbroker first was shown pictures of the gun and later was shown the stock itself. He positively identified it by "unmistakable markings" as that which he had sold.

District Attorney Woolwin arranged to take Rosenthal before Burch today to learn if Rosenthal could identify the accused man as the purchaser of the gun. Burch, it was pointed out, arrived in Los Angeles, July 24.

Ralph S. Obenchain, Chicago attorney, whose divorced wife, Mrs. Madalynne Connor Obenchain, is jointly accused with Burch of Kennedy's murder, announced today that plans are being made to fight the legal battle for Mrs. Obenchain's freedom with every available resource.

He asserted that a positive defence would be made and an effort made "not only to prove Mrs. Obenchain and Burch innocent, but to try to solve the mystery of the crime and find out who did the shooting."

It became known today that no transcript was taken of the Grand Jury proceedings when Burch and Mrs. Obenchain were indicted. It is not required by statute, consequently the defence will find it necessary to question all witnesses summoned before the impaneled body to learn exactly what evidence the State has obtained.

and other contributions that are en route.

$100 FROM STEARNS FAMILY.

Congressman Louis A. Frothingham wired from Washington:

"Pleased to indorse your move to raise fund for Policeman Cuneo's family and shall be glad to send a contribution."

The Boston City Council also recognized the worthiness of the cause by voting an annuity of $600 to the widow of the dead patrolman, on order of Councillor Walter A. Collins. At the same time Councillor James T. Moriarty announced he will introduce an order at the next meeting, requesting the revocation of every license issued for the sale of firearms in the city.

Starting with the Boston American contribution of $100 immediately following announcement of Cuneo's death Saturday afternoon, the fund leaped to $1,417 by Sunday night and $583 was added yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns contributed $100. Mr. Stearns, head of R. H. Stearns & Co, sent this letter:

August 15, 1921.

Editor Boston American:

It gives me pleasure to respond with a check from Mrs. Stearns and myself for the fund which you are raising for the widow and children of Patrolman Cuneo. The Boston American is certainly rendering a valuable public service in helping this fund along. Sincerely,

F. W. STEARNS.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald sent a check for $100 and has been one of the most ardent workers for the cause.

FROM ALL WALKS.

These expressions of opinions by representative men are an index to general sentiment. The Boston American Cuneo Fund has met with approval everywhere. People in all walks of life are, by their contributions, expressing appreciation of the sacrifice and heroism of Cuneo and their sympathy for his family. Bootblacks and bankers are among the donors today.

A reformed pickpocket stopped a member of the North End Citizens' Committee on the street. He said:

"Cuneo was a good scout. Here's my bit. Last I got or I'd make it more."

"What name will I list it under?" asked the committeeman.

"Give me a stage name. Call me Mike O'Hara." The $2 contribution appears today in the list against that fictitious name.

Leonard Rinaldo, whose father, Rocco Rinaldo, has conducted a bootblack stand next to the Hanover Street Station for thirty years, quit polishing the shoes of customers yesterday and spent the day collecting for the Cuneo fund. The boy turned in $222 as his day's work, $109 of which was sent to Mrs. Cuneo yesterday by the committee to meet immediate expenses.

Superintendent M. H. Crowley of the Boston Police Department inclosed his personal check for $25 with a letter which read:

"To be added to the Andrew H. Cuneo fund—for the benefit of the family of a good man who was killed in the performance of duty."

A new Citizens' Fund Committee was appointed yesterday to work in conjunction with the North End Citizens' Committee and the Boston American. This committee is made up of Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, whose check for $100 was one of the earliest received; former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, former Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil, Garfield L. Stone, Frank W. Stearns, A. C. Ratshesky, Allen R. Frederick, Andrew A. Badaracco and Charles A. Parris, the latter one of the directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

There are upwards of fifty members of the North End Citizens' Cuneo Fund Committee and they are turning in collections to Chairman Allen R. Frederick when in turn, submits all checks and cash to the Boston American Cuneo Fund. In this way the work has been centralized and confusion avoided. The North End Citizens' Committee headquarters is in Mr. Frederick's office, No. 193 Hanover street.

TO GIVE DAY'S PAY.

It was stated today that every officer attached to the Hanover Street station, where Cuneo had been assigned for six years, had agreed to contribute a day's pay to the fund. Under a general order issued last night the men of each of the nineteen stations and the traffic squad have been authorized to make collections which will be added to the Boston American Cuneo Fund. It is expected that between $2,000 and $2,500 will be raised in the department. There are upward of 1,500 members on the force.

CUNEO EULOGIZED.

In another general order which follows, Commissioner Curtis eulogized Patrolman Cuneo. He said:

"Once again it becomes my sad duty to announce to the department the death of a police officer who was killed in the discharge of his duty. Patrolman Andrew H. Cuneo, Division 1, the deceased patrolman, on Saturday, August 13, 1921, was shot to death by a man whom he was placing under arrest.

"Patrolman Cuneo calmly, bravely and without hesitation, faced the danger that confronted him, a danger that is typical of the policeman's life and like a true police officer, faithful to his oath of office and to his duty he has given his life for the protection of the public. The dangers that a patrolman is called upon to incur, no well known to every member of the force, are rarely thought of by the public until some tragedy such as this forces them upon its notice. Nor does the public realize that in addition to these dangers, a police officer is also compelled to undergo unjust criticism and even persecution, which might naturally tend to discourage him from the performance of his full duty. Yet Patrolman Cuneo performed his full duty.

Large Police Detail for Cuneo Funeral

An unusually large detail of police will be assigned as an escort at the funeral of Patrolman Andrew H. Cuneo at St. Ann's church, Neponset, tomorrow morning.

A detail of forty-eight patrolmen all from the Hanover street station, to which Cuneo was attached for six years, will be headed by Captain Arthur B. McConnell, and Lieutenants Joseph P. Harley and John S. Hildon and four sergeants.

A special detail of six officers, with whom Cuneo was particularly friendly, will be assigned as pallbearers.

The funeral cortage will form at Neponset avenue and Victory Road at 7:30 and march to the church in time for the ceremony at 9.

Cuneo's Slayer Is Grilled by Police

Wearing a white felt hat tucked over the bandages that swathed his head, Philip F. Whelan, the former policeman who shot and killed Patrolman Andrew H. Cuneo last Saturday afternoon, was taken from the City Hospital today to the office of Superintendent of Police Crowley, and later to that of Captain Alsalee B. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, where he was put through the third degree and then rogues' gallery pictures were made.

He appeared almost gay, as he walked along the street, his wrist manacled to two officers. There was, however, a furtive look about his eyes, and he licked his lips nervously as he faced the crowd.

Despite the bullet wounds received in the fight after the killing of Cuneo and the beating when he tried to escape he looked very well.

PRINCETON MAN GETS JAIL TERM AT YORK, ME.

Convicted of Illegally Possessing Liquor—Midnight Revel Fight Still Rages

York Beach, Me., Aug. 16.—John Vanderhoan of Salsbury Park, Md., son of a wealthy and prominent southern family, was fined $100 and given a thirty-day jail sentence here today, when he was arraigned before Judge Hildreth on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. Vanderhoagan, who is a resident of Princeton, appealed the sentence.

Five other young men received suspended sentences of 30 days each on charges of disturbing the peace.

They are Everett Jackson, grandson of a former governor of Maryland, John Hoff, a Yale student of New Haven, Ct., Robert Cunnington, of New York city, and John Brennan and Clarence Hallogan of Providence, R. I.

Attorney George Cargill, who recently figured in the Stillman divorce case, represented the young men in an attorney capacity.

Feeling is running high among the residents of York Beach, who claim the wealthy summer visitors at York Harbor select the beach for noisy midnight revels. Many complain that dance music prevents sleeping until well into the morning hours.

Many of the permanent residents allege the summer residents take the attitude in their dealings with the local police force that they are dealing with a "bunch of hicks."

"SUICIDE HALL" COLLAPSE IMPERILS LIVES OF FOUR

New York, Aug. 16.—One end of "Suicide Hall," John MacGurk's one-time famous Bowery resort, collapsed early today, endangering the lives of a family of four living on the floor above, frightening 200 homeless men sleeping in the basement, and causing a panic in the neighborhood. Years ago the building earned the name of "Suicide Hall" from the large number of unfortunate girls who ended their lives there. For some years past it has housed the Hadley Mission.

HONOR NEGRO PORTER KILLED IN RAID IN 1859

Charlestown, W. Va., Aug. 16.—A tablet is to be erected by the Lafayette Botts Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, on the site where Hayward Shepherd, a negro porter at the hotel at Harper's Ferry, met death in the John Brown raid in 1859, it was announced here today.

Shepherd, the records show, was the first man killed in the raid.

FEAR 'CONTROLS' IN SPIRIT WORLD ARE ON STRIKE

Clairvoyant's 'Guest' for Body of Drowned Maine Physician Proves Futile

Lebanon, N. H., Aug. 16.—There is industrial war in the spirit world, and the "controls" are all on strike.

At least that is the belief of Mrs. Nellie Titus, a well-known clairvoyant, who has been unable to get a message through from "beyond the divide" relative to the location of the body of Dr. Willis J. Marion of Calais, Me., drowned while swimming with two small sons at Mascoma Lake last week.

After the physician's family had tried every other possible means of finding his body they obtained the services of Mrs. Titus.

Several years ago the clairvoyant was successful in finding the body of a young woman who jumped into the lake from Shaker bridge, and was drowned. Since then she has been called upon several times for similar tasks.

But this time not a hint of a psychic flash has come through over the spirit radio. Mrs. Titus is not sure whether the trouble is with the receiver at this end or the connection has been broken by spirit sabotage at the other end.

In vain she followed her usual course in such affairs by causing herself to be rowed over the spot where the doctor died.

In vain she has gone into the most profound trances. As a consequence, she is sure that spirit controls have struck, but whether for less work and more money or for recognition of the Amalgamated Confederation of Spirit Rappers she cannot determine.

The fact that the current probably has swept the doctor's body far out into the lake has nothing whatever to do with the matter, she insists.

Coolidge Loafs at Home of Dad

"Hangin' around, simply hangin' around; Ain't lookin' for nothin' that's easy found."

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 16.—In the words of the old song, Vice-President Calvin Coolidge is "just hangin' around" the farm of his father, John C. Coolidge, where he is spending his vacation with his family.

Haying is done, the fishing season is ended, and there is nothing for the Vice-President to do.

Her CALVIN COOLIDGE

"Mrs. Coolidge, the boys and myself came last Friday," said he, "and we have been loafing, simply having a good time. I do not know how long we shall stay. I may be called back to Washington at any moment."

The Vice-President motored here from his home in Northampton, Mass., with Mrs. Coolidge and their sons, John and Calvin, Jr. But few persons in his native town knew of his arrival.

BLAME FIREBUG FOR $81000 ROXBURY BLAZE

State and local police are investigating a two-alarm fire of suspected incendiary origin in the two-story brick building, occupied by the Columbia Ice Cream Cone Company, at No. 137 Farnham street, Roxbury. It caused $8,000 damage, and drove twenty from their homes to the street when sparks set incipient roof fires.

Investigators are said to be searching for an unidentified man, who is alleged to have been seen on the second floor of the building shortly before the blaze was discovered.

The fire, starting on the second floor, worked its way up and down, and the building was a mass of flames before it was discovered. A brisk breeze carried sparks and flying embers to adjacent tenements and buildings and caused a second alarm. Damage from these was slight.

CHINA WILL SEND 31 DELEGATES TO PARLEY

Dr. Yen Likely to Be Selected as Chief and Dr. Tyan as Secretary

By Associated Press.

Peking, Aug. 16.—China's delegation at the conference on disarmament and Far East questions, to be held in Washington late this Autumn, will comprise thirty-one members. It will consist of a chief and four associate delegates, ten councillors and sixteen clerks, according to a tentative decision reached by the cabinet yesterday.

Dr. Philip K. C. Tyan, at present councillor at the Foreign Office, who will probably be the chief secretary of the delegation, will leave for the United States early in September to make preliminary arrangements.

It is generally regarded that the selection of Dr. W. W. Yen, foreign minister, as chief of the delegation, would meet with approval in China, due to the fact that he is not affiliated with any party, and is thoroughly familiar with foreign affairs.

Briand Will Head French Delegation

Paris, Aug. 16.—Official acceptance on the part of the French government of the invitation extended by President Harding to the conference on disarmament and Far East questions was forwarded to Washington last night. Premier Briand, who yesterday told Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador here, that he would attend the conference, notified Washington that he would be present.

8-YEAR-OLD CHILD BAKES BIRTHDAY CAKE

Eorleton, Aug. 16.—A cake baked by eight-year-old Charlotte Esterbrook was exhibited at the eighty-seventh birthday anniversary celebration of Lorenzo Orille Carle, her great-grandfather. Later the exhibit was eaten.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

AMONG the best-liked Autumn coats from Paris are those which add capes across the shoulders at the back. One such model of fawn-colored duvetyn, sketched at the left, has its sleeves and skirt formed of narrow sections of the duvetyn which overlap one another, giving it much the appearance of a frock, and the string girdle with its little wooden beads is similar to those used for the advance Autumn dresses. The adapting of frock lines to coats is an outstanding feature of the new mode.

WITH the return of the sleeve to a conspicuous position the collar also has begun to demand attention and Paris is advocating the tall one, either turned over or upstanding, as a suitable running mate for the long, wide sleeves of the Autumn mode. Blue taffeta makes the charming afternoon frock at the right, with its flaring collar repeating the blue and gold embroidered design used for the skirt. Side tunics such as appear in this skirt seem to take precedence this season, the front and back of skirts remaining undraped.

LAWRENCE GIRL SAVES 2 FROM DROWNING

Twelve-Year-Old Heroine Rescues Sister and Mate Beyond Their Depth

Lawrence, Aug. 16.—The presence of mind and bravery of twelve-year-old Mary Connors of this city probably averted a double drowning in the Merrimac River, from which the little girl swimmer rescued her sister, Catherine, sixteen years old, and a companion, Lillian Gunn, fifteen.

The three girls were bathing near Merriman Park, where they were camping. Catherine, the older Connors girl, who was the best swimmer of the three, was seized with a cramp some distance from the shore and called for help.

The Gunn girl, who was nearest her, went to her aid, when she, too, became frightened and the two girls disappeared below the surface.

Seeing them disappear, the younger Connors girl did not lose her head and scream, but pushed off a rowboat from the shore and, swimming behind it, went to the assistance of her two companions, who had appeared again and were struggling in the current.

When she reached them the Gunn girl was able to climb into the boat but her sister was just losing consciousness. She was pushed into the boat and revived after being brought to shore.

THIEF IN CLERICAL DISGUISE GETS $3,600

New York, Aug. 16.—A man dressed as a priest obtained from Tiffany & Co. by payment of a worthless check, rings valued at $3,600 and silverware, the value of which was not stated.

The black-robed visitor told the clerk he was selecting gifts for his parishioners in a Southern city. He asked that the goods be sent to the Vanderbilt Hotel. The delivery boy was met at the hotel by the supposed priest, who offered a check in payment. The boy hesitated to accept the check, but was reassured by sight of the priestly garb.

TWO ARRESTED WITH STOLEN AUTO

Had Pitched Camp on Thayer Estate, Braintree, When Police Arrived

Arrest by the Braintree police of three men on a simple charge of trespassing led to important developments when it was found they had possession of a stolen auto and are wanted by the Providence, R. I., and New Bedford police.

The men held are: William Soddy, No. 47½ Howard street, New Bedford; James McDonald, No. 218 Hanover street, Boston; and Robert Van Ember of Purchase street, Providence, R. I. The first two are being held as suspicious persons. A charge of carrying a loaded revolver without a permit has been lodged against Van Ember.

Thomas Downey, caretaker of the General Thayer estate in Braintree, notified the police of an auto and tent on the estate. The three had settled on the place for the night. A fully loaded twenty-two calibre revolver was found on Van Ember.

The Braintree police found, on communicating with the Providence, R. I., police, that the machine was stolen Sunday from Walter T. Colantone of that city. All three suspects are wanted there on additional charges. Soddy is also wanted by the New Bedford police.

FIVE NEW CASES OF TYPHOID FEVER IN R. I.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 16. — Five new cases of typhoid fever reported in the State, two of which are in Pawtucket, have caused the State Board of Health to attempt to check the progress of the disease before there is an epidemic.

The authorities declare that all five cases can probably be traced to the milk supply and an investigation is being made to determine the exact source. Victims who are not residents of Pawtucket are said to have contracted the disease while visiting that city.

Wed's Suitor Who Won Her by Mail

Worcester, Aug. 16.—Paprony Dogramdjian, a Winsome miss, who up to a month ago was a student in a girls' college in Constantinople, is today a bride as the result of a courtship by mail.

While the girl was in college a friend here gave her name to Bagdaser Davidian, a young Worcester merchant. Davidian began a correspondence with her which finally culminated in a proposal. Neither party to the match ever saw the other until a few weeks ago, when the girl stepped from a ship at New York after a 4,000-mile trip.

NO "DRY" AGENTS OVER FIFTY, SAYS HAYNES

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Can a man smell booze after he is fifty years old? Evidently U. A. Haynes, Commissioner of Federal prohibition, does not think so, for he sent word to the Chicago offices today not to employ any liquor sleuths who are not on the sunny side of the half-century mark.

"A prohibition agent has to take a lot of physical risks," said John K. Zellander, State prohibition director. "His best years of service naturally are when he is young, when his eyesight is good and his feet are agile."

LIMIT AUTOS TO GUARD YOUNG BATHERS

Speed of 10 Miles an Hour Now Maximum on Section of Strandway

Because of the large number of child bathers who cross the Strandway, the Boston City Council passed an order limiting the speed of vehicles on that thoroughfare to ten miles an hour between Columbia road bridge, Dorchester and Castle Island bridge, South Boston.

The council also passed an order at the request of Mayor Peters limiting the speed of vehicles on Harvard bridge to fifteen miles an hour. In a communication to the council the mayor said that the Boston and Cambridge Bridge Commission believed that it was for the best interest of the bridge to limit the speed to fifteen miles.

Easy For Thin People to Put on Flesh and Gain Weight

It's such an easy matter nowadays for thin, weak, scrawny people to put on good, healthy, solid flesh and become plump and graceful that one often wonders why there are still so many people who seem to prefer to be "all skin and bones" ungainly and unattractive to look upon.

Physicians have long known that whoever could discover a remedy that would make the body feel, that one has a real stomach to turn into good, rich, flesh-making blood instead of going to waste would also discover how to put healthy muscular flesh onto thin under-nourished people and this has now been accomplished.

If you are thin, under developed, nervous, run-down or ill from any cause, you can secure at any good pharmacy at once a supply of the full treatment of EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES, a new combination of rich protein, organic nucleic building, strength creating elements that is guaranteed to put good, solid, lasting flesh on your body and to make you strong, healthy and vigorous, or money back.

Physicians who have watched the results of the Evans' Triple Phosphates treatment are astonished at the rapid acting qualities; a month fills ten pounds of desirable weight is gained. Many Drug Concerns, Boston Drug Co., Arnold's Drug Co., Cor. Tremont and Hunt., Walker & Pinto's have agreed to supply residents of this paper with Evans' Triple Phosphates and to guarantee it to do just what is claimed for it or money returned.

URGES EUROPEAN PLEA FOR AID OF RUSSIA

Hapgood Opposed to Injection of Politics Into Relief Conference Debates

By NORMAN HAPGOOD
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Aug. 16.—At the conference on Russian relief, to begin in Geneva Monday, it is to be hoped that those countries which are keen on the subject of Russia will make themselves heard.

Those countries which need particularly to see Russia saved, and also need to see themselves saved from the terrible menace of diseases that recognize no borders of geography, have the right to stand firmly against the injection of political consideration into the relief work.

WARNING BY HOOVER.

Mr. Hoover, in his cablegram last week to ex-President Adolf Ador of Switzerland, head of the conference, said "The causes of the famine are such that they will be recurrent every year until there is much further change in the economic system of Russia."

France will carry this political emphasis still further, and it is most essential that countries with even more at stake than either the United States or France shall do their best to keep the political motive out.

Here is a free advertisement. I wish a lot of people would buy the New Republic for August 10 and read the leading editorial on the wrong we have done ourselves, as well as Russia, by a persistent propaganda that has put us into a state of mind where we are quite incapable of doing charity simply.

A while ago I announced that the State Department was having printed a report on the Russian situation, made in England. No doubt the whole report will be printed, but these things are not read in full. Short summaries are given out to the press and those are all that in general are seen.

DESERVED SCOLDING.

When the report was made in England the parts that were put in the press were chosen to give the impression that what was the matter with Russia was her present form of government. The report certainly did scold the Bolshevists, and they deserve scolding, but parts of the report that were not mentioned in the press deserve attention also.

Perhaps those parts will receive some mention when the printing over here is finished. As an example, look at that report of 1916.

In 1916 (note the date) "the transport system was no longer able to adequately maintain, at one and the same time, the supplies of the armies at the front and of the population at home."

Then let us take 1917, in February, before even the revolution of the intelligentsia: "Long queues were to be seen throughout the city and in the working-class quarters bread was scarcely to be obtained at all. A series of demonstrations began. The bridges across the Neva were blown up, but thousands of hungry men and women poured across the frozen river and made their way to Nevsky Prospect on the other side."

That was four years and a half before the present blessed era, in which we approach Russia with one hand full of food for her starving people, and the other full of essays on how her troubles are due to the faults of her system, and not to the extra months and years of war that we have forced on her.

Now as to our glorious blockade. This anti-Bolshevik committee, headed by a lord, and for the rest, made up of two other titled gentlemen and a former member of the British cabinet, observes:

"The blockade reacted principally upon the exchange of commodities between town and country."

And it was the failure of that exchange, with disorganized conditions, that brought about the present famine.

PRINCESS TROUBETSKOY, ACCUSED BY HUSBAND

Princess Nadjeda Vasilievna Troubetzkoy, of Russia, whose husband, Victor A. Turin, seeks legal freedom from her. Her present husband, Captain Wallace Schutz, is also suing for divorce.

SEEKS FREEDOM FROM PRINCESS TROUBETZKOY

"Marriage Is Rope of Steel," Says Turin, First Husband, Who Will Name Second

"It is better to be bound with chains of roses than to be bound with chains of steel."

This, primarily, is the reason given by Victor A. Turin for his divorce suit from the Princess Nadjeda Vasilievna Troubetzkoy. At the office of his counsel, Nathan Ulin, Turin gave his views and cited the trouble between him and the princess as quite different from what most husbands experience. He explained:

"I am a Russian gentleman. The princess is, of course, the princess—member of the highest Russian nobility. Now, I met the princess in 1915. She had been a Red Cross nurse in the war. I had been sent over here to buy munitions for the Russian government. At that time my views of life and marriage and love between the sexes were fully formed. The princess loved me for a while, and I her.

"Then came separation. We both agreed that it was better to part. We pursued beauty in separate ways—she and I—for beauty was what we both adored. So we agreed to part amicably, according to our individual ideas of happiness. All was well.

HEARD SHE WAS MARRIED

"Then consider my amazement when I found that the princess had married Captain Wallace Schuz while she was married to me. This Schutz divorce suit is also logical answer to her action. Captain Schutz's divorce suit is, also logical action, though I really cannot see how a man can be divorced from a woman to whom he was never legally married.

"Now the whole difficulty between my princess and myself is far different from that of the average couple. In the first place, I have come to know, fully, that you cannot get happiness in marriage. It is impossible. Marriage is ropes of steel.

"Love is ropes of roses. How pretty the idea—ropes of roses! How constraining the idea—ropes of steel! That is my comparison between marriage and the ideal relation of the sexes, unhampered by all these fretting modern conventions.

"But it is well for a man to be on the safe side always. It is well for a man, like the seven wise virgins, to be prepared against any emergency. I cannot foresee that an emergency ever coming into my life—as that I should change my ideas about the cruelly hard bonds of matrimony. But if I ever did, it would be most flowering for me to meet a lady whom I would wish to marry and not be able to offer her those same bonds of steel and iron.

REGARDS HER HIGHLY.

"You see, in this wide-awake, money-mad America of yours the outward symbol means a great deal. The little old wedding ring means the world and all to most women. Therefore it is well for a man to love to honor a woman in this way. So I am divorcing the princess. But, mind you, I still have the highest regard for her and wish her the best of happiness."

Turin is young and romantic, with the romance of George Moore.

"Ah," says he, "I cannot tell you how badly I feel that I was not born in the middle of the nineteenth century! Other centuries would have suited me, in fact, as I would have done better than this one I am living in. We are so savage now! None of us possess beauty as we should. But to me beauty is the only thing in life. Beauty of art, beauty of literature, beauty of architecture, beauty in our homes, beauty in our loving.

AMERICA MONEY-MAD.

"The trouble with your America is that so many of you are mad, money seekers. All you love is the dollar, while what I love are the delights of love and laughter; the rare pleasures of an exotic soul that these vulgar dollars of yours will never bring. In this the princess and I were one—but then—those bonds of steel!" Turin shook his head.

CARUSO'S LAST NOTE REACHES NEW YORK

Pathetic Postscript to Letter of Wife Received by Former Manager

New York, Aug. 16.—A letter written by Enrico Caruso on July 26, a few days before his death, and probably the last letter he wrote, was received through the mails by R. C. Coppicus, head of the Metropolitan Musical Bureau of this city.

It was the intention of Caruso, on account of the state of his health, to leave the writing of the letter to his wife, but after pen ned a reply in English to a letter from Coppicus, the tenor appended a note in Italian in his own hand. The letter written by Mrs. Caruso says:

"Thank you for yours of the twenty-eighth of June. Mr. Caruso is not very well just now, so I am writing for him. He is not sure yet when he will return to New York, so he says he will wait until his arrival there to discuss his concert plans with you personally.

"We are going to Rome on Wednesday, to the Grand Hotel. We will be there indefinitely.

"Gloria is splendid, and, fortunately, so am I.

"Mr. Caruso sends his best regards, and will write himself when he is able."

Caruso's note, translated, follows:

"As my wife has told you, I cannot undertake any business obligations now, because I see that my convalescence will be long. Therefore, for my own tranquility, it is better that we do not talk business until I am able to do so.

"I send you my best regards and good wishes.

CARUSO."

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

FAMOUS Players-Lasky, casting about for sure-fire successes, hit upon the idea of filming the stage play, "Miss Lulu Bett," adapted from Zona Gale's novel of that name. William DeMille, whose specialty is bringing out the atmosphere of small-town stories and suburban romances, has been chosen to direct the production.

When "Miss Lulu Bett" first made her public bow between book-covers she was enthusiastically applauded. Miss Gale then proceeded to write her story into a play, which was presented in New York last season with Carroll McComas in the title role and with Louise Closser Hale scoring a decided hit in a character part.

On the screen fluffy little Mildred Harris will play Lulu Bett. Wallie Ames Harris is in no way similar to Carroll McComas and while she doesn't suggest the small-town girl, still DeMille is known for his astute casting. If he declares that Miss Harris can play it, let there be no doubt in anyone's mind.

Theodore Roberts, whom George M. Cohan pronounced the "finest character actor on the stage or screen today," will be seen in the supporting cast as well as Helen Ferguson, Mahlon Van Buren, Hills May Giraeet and Ethel Wales. "Miss Lulu Betts" won the Pulitzer prize last year for being the best American play produced.

GLORIA SWANSON EAST.

GLORIA SWANSON finished the last scenes of the new "all-star special, "Don't Tell Everybody," in which she co-stars with Elliott Dexter and Wallace Reid, and hurried for the train. She is in New York now visiting the shops and theatres.

Miss Swanson has given no information concerning her next productions, but she will probably be seen as a "lone star," she is planning a visit to the Rialto Theatre in New York to see how the audience takes her Elinor Glyn picture, "The Great Moment."

HOLLYWOOD POLICEMEN SULKING

THE decree in the California courts that members of the police force are forbidden to appear in motion pictures in uniform is giving the Hollywood "cops" something to think about.

It's been the custom to use real policemen in pictures, to the satisfaction of the director who was certain the audience could not say "he's a fake," and to the satisfaction of the policemen who received some very substantial gratitude for it. "It cannot be," declared the court, and the force is taking up a consideration of the H. C. L.

Reslart Bill at Modern

Though her last name is Brady, Alice Brady is equally at home in an Italian role, a Russian role, or a Syrian role. Whatever she does is the result of careful thought and artistry. As the Russian of "The Land of Hope," she was remarkable; as the Syrian Anna in her stage play of last season, "Anna Ascends," she seemed to fairly live the role; and as the Italian Rosa Moscani in "Little Italy," playing at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week, she again "hits the bullseye."

"Little Italy" deals with a feud between two families. Only this time there is no "mob" or "gang" work in the Italian section of New York. Instead, this particular group of Italians have settled in the outskirts of New York, where they have transplanted the truck-gardens and hothouses of their own land.

Rosa is the despair of everyone in the community, and particularly of her father, Marco Moscani, who is the leader of the Moscani faction as opposed to the Tumillo side of the feud. After a kidnaping that Rosa returns into a fiasco, Marco decrees that she must marry or leave his house. She makes a vow to marry the first eligible man she meets, and is tricked into marrying Antonio Tumillo, head of the enemy. From there on a love story develops.

That Bebe Daniels can win honors with such a story as "One Wild Week," the feature picture on the bill speaks very well for her. And she does win honors with it. The house laughter constantly, yesterday during the picture. She is quite the most satisfying comedienne we have.

ALL FOR ART.

PLAYING in pictures isn't always "safety first"; sometimes it's "picture first." When Walter Mayo, Frederick Earle's assistant director, who volunteered to lead a group of horsemen in one of the mob scenes for the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, dashed down a hill, his horse stumbled and Mayo was hurled off. His foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged several yards.

Mrs. Mayo, his bride of a few weeks, was watching from behind the camera. She rushed out on the field when the accident happened. Mayo jumped up and, namely as he could. All he had to say was, "Did I grab the scene?"

6 AUTOISTS CLEARED OF "SHOOTUP" CHARGE

Worcester, Aug. 16 — Using a big limousine stolen from Ida Smith, Arlington, two youths shot up the towns of Ayer, Shirley and Littleton, according to a warning telephoned the police here who stopped a car containing five young men and three young women within a short time after.

The eight professed ignorance of the stolen car and after investigating their story were allowed to go. Their car was held up by police with crawn revolvers on Grove street at an early hour, as the warning described the two youths with the stolen limousine as real gunmen.

FOUR MORE DAYS AND THE SONG TITLE TEST ENDS

Four days more and the Boston American's $6,000 Songs of the World Title Test comes to an end with the printing of Test Picture No. 62.

Participants will have the remainder of Friday and all of Saturday, Sunday and Monday to decide upon a title.

Your parcels, each containing 60 Test Pictures with titles written beneath them, must be dropped in the mail not later than midnight on Monday. That is, Monday night.

Two or three questions have appeared in so many of the letters which have come to the Test Editor recently that, assuming hundreds to be interested in them, he will do his best to answer them here.

Is the Artist likely to have in mind an obsolete meaning of some of the words which have appeared in the Lists of Titles?

This question was passed along to the Artist, who answers it as follows:

Any meaning I find in the dictionary is plenty good enough for Test, or contest, purposes. That is the way I look at it. You may remember the picture of a cavalryman I used in the Movie Play Title Test to illustrate the title, "The Plunger." In the dictionary, under "Plunger," I found:

5—(Slang) Mil. A cavalryman.

I think it only fair to advise participants in your Test that ("Obs."), written after a definition in the dictionary, never has been taken by me as a warning to keep off.

Of all the pictures which have been printed up to date the one mentioned in most letters to the Test Editor is No. 41.

Many of them asked the writer to tell them what No. 41 is "supposed to represent."

To do that would almost be to Know the Correct Title.

Others want to know if it will be all right to "cut" No. 41 into sections for the purpose of examining it more closely and if that picture may be omitted from parcels if a title is sent along for it.

Parcels must consist of 60 Pictures and their titles. Missing pictures will be counted "Incorrect."

However, the desire to cut No. 41 into pieces and see what can be made of it is apparently so universal that it is reprinted today, along with Test Picture No. 59. With two copies of No. 41 in your possession you may cut one of them to your heart's content. The Artist meant No. 41 to be his best "sticker."

When Picture No. 13 was thrown out of the Test the statement was made in this column that No. 13 was the only "trick" picture of that description that there had been and would be no other. The Test Picture No. 59 was concealed within another picture. The other picture was a meaningless hodge-podge. There WAS no title for it. Turned upside down, however, one easily made out "The Pretty Maid Milking Her Cow."

Notwithstanding the announcement that there were and would be no other "trick" pictures of this sort—that is, pictures concealed within other pictures—scores of participants have been "seeing things" ever since. They write in to report that they have "discovered" the figure of this, that and the other thing in such-and-such a picture.

Forget it, folks, there are no such things.

Picture No. 41 is in a class all by itself. In his other "stickers"—If he has produced any, and the Test Editor doubts it—the Artist has followed the methods he used in the Movie Play Title Test. That method was fairly revealed in the announcement that the title of No. 24 was "Constantinople." The man in that picture spoke twice of Byzantium, the ancient name of Constantinople. The wise participant did not need more of a tip than that.

Three Test Pictures remain to be printed. No. 62 will appear on Friday in all editions. At midnight on the following Monday every parcel must be in the mails. Those who desire may bring them to the Boston American office at No. 80 Summer street, Boston, but not after midnight on Monday of next week. Minute directions concerning the wrapping and mailing of parcels will be printed later.

Correct Title Is Here

In this list can be found the Correct Title of the Test Picture printed today. This has been true every day and will be true to the end. One title in this list fits today's picture better than any other title in the List. That title is the Correct Title. Select it carefully. This explanation is printed because the caption recently has used the word "titles" instead of "title." There is only one Correct Title for each Test Picture.

FIND NEW CLEW IN WOODBURY MYSTERY

Wardrobe Trunk Shipped by Ritter From Buffalo on Day Waltham Man Disappeared

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 16—A large wardrobe trunk, shipped by Rudolph M. Ritter, a civil engineer, the day Arthur A. Woodbury, former alderman of Waltham, Mass., disappeared from his hotel here, may solve the mystery surrounding the fate of the missing Bay State man.

The local police today admitted that they are trying to trace the trunk, as well as to get on the trail of still another which Ritter is alleged to have shipped the same day, July 27. The first is said to be in Cleveland. No trace of the second has yet been found.

The day Woodbury disappeared his wife in Waltham received a letter in his handwriting, saying that he intended going to Erie, Pa., with a "man named Ritter."

When he had been missing several days a fisherman found, near the foot of a cliff on the shore of Lake Erie, fifteen miles from here, a black pocketbook, later identified as having belonged to Woodbury. It appeared to have been thrown from a passing automobile, and contained business letters, but no money.

Later Rudolph M. Ritter was apprehended by the police, but released on his statement that he never had known the missing man.

WHY YOU NEED IRON—

To make you strong and "brainy" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs

PRACTICAL ADVICE ON HOW TO DEVELOP GREAT ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they burn up a tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your food cannot burn with oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism and nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs, is iron. Foods rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance and the greatest energy builder in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which cannot be used, but organic iron, like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist.

If you have been taking metallic iron without benefit such as in pepsi that organic Nuxated Iron will not help you. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, run down folks in two weeks' time. It is quick, it is extremely valuable product that even the Pope at Rome wants especially used, according to a communication to the Pharmacie Normale. It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and thousands of prominent people.

'MAN-HUNTERS' DESCRIBED BY CONNOLLY

Tells of Wastrels and "Gentlemen of England" Recruited by Black and Tans

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY

Famous New England Author and Journalist.

Dublin Castle for a time published regular "official summaries" of the causualties among Irish civilians and Irish members of the I. R. A. They had to quit that and lump the civilians and I. R. A. men in one item. There was a good reason for that; there were altogether too many civilians and too few I. R. A. men being killed.

The original Black and Tans were supposed to be a low lot; this later draft were supposed to be of the "better classes." There were undoubtedly men and men of "family" among them. But having had an education or having come of important families did ensure a man's morals or morals.

And even having been an officer in the British army does not guarantee nobility of character. The "gentlemen and chivalry of England" showed themselves in the starliest, if they were possible, than the original draft.

NOT WHOLLY SANE.

Something is wrong, if it isn't so in the beginning it will be in the end, with men who will hire out to fight, to burn, kill, ravage and loot unarmed men and women with no danger of ever being called to account for it.

The cruelty of many of these Black and Tans was so fiendish that Irish people said they could not be wholly sane. The Irish may have had it right.

Among the "Gentlemen of England" there must have been many of abnormal type; there is no bringing a collection of such together without getting many of the type; wastrels from well-to-do English families some of them were; wastrels of those high energies which property expanded make for man's supreme development; wastrels who were opening victims in knowledge of vice, but well behaved, unnaturarly well behaved in good company.

Given to every form of excess are such, sensualists of the cold-blooded, calculating kind usually, and dope fiends frequently. Sometimes such men are courageous, especially when keyed up by drugs.

The I. R. A. reported some corking good fighting men among the later Black and Tans, but more cruel than courageous, especially cruel toward their victims seeking the new sensations. To such an abnormal creature the pursuit of the flying fugitive is more exciting than the hunting of big game.

"MAN HUNTING."

I have heard young fellows who have done a little of it in our own country, say that "man-hunting" is the most exciting sport of all. The hunted animal is only a flying, senseless body, but man-hunting is not the danger of having to go to the gallows afterwards it must be peculiarly stimulating to the jaded degenerate.

I love to hear them squeal, said one of them over the body of a poor man whose life the blood was coming in bubbles, and from those three were issuing the little whistles of approaching death. Degenerate and crazy they may be, which, however, should not absolve the high administrators who cold-blooded, seek out such for their brutal purposes.

Wherever I went in Ireland I was usually told that the Black and Tans were worse than the regular English army men; usually, but not always. I have said something of Dungarvan, which is just south of Waterford. A few miles north of Waterford is the little town of Enniscorthy, where a detachment of the Devonshire regiment under a certain Lieutenant Yeo administered justice.

A man would be seized off the street or in his home and brought before Yeo. There might be no charge against him, and he might be young or old, a man of business and social standing; or he might be a hard working laborer of no worldly importance at all. Yeo would look him over and perhaps say: "Oh, give him a shave, and a hair cut."

The man's head would be shaved to the scalp; his beard, if he wore one, shaved entirely off. The guards would then march him back to Yeo, who would then say—(this was a regular and not a rare procedure): "Pooh! He smells! Give him the bawth!"

The guards would then take the man out, strip him naked and from the cold running tap draw buckets of water and souse him all over. From eight to a dozen bucketfuls at intervals was the usual allowance. And this might happen and did happen on a Winter's night.

BARBAROUS TREATMENT.

Yeo's record shows that there was more of this done in cold weather than in warm, and the fact of the man having been long exposed to the cold air in an open lorry made no difference. After the "bawth" Yeo men would rub his bare skin with stiff scrubbing brushes, usually till the blood came, and this might be and was done on Winter nights.

Next they might and regularly did paint grotesque figures on the man's bare scalp or shaven face.

The man might then be allowed to go to his cell; but not to sleep. Every hour or so during the night, the guard would kick him up if he were asleep or kick him up because he wasn't asleep if he found him awake.

There would be as many as eighteen men in a cell intended for from four to six, a rotten, foul-smelling place without sanitary conveniences, and so cramped in size that there wasn't room for a full complement of prisoners to all lie down at once.

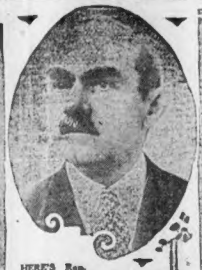
WALLACE REID AND WIFE AGREE TO DISAGREE, SAYS DAME RUMOR

SYLPHINE! A charming pose of Miss Alice Eldridge, who, as a diving beauty, will be one of the features at the Boston American's swimming carnival Aug. 27. Don't fail to see her.

BY GOLLY, THIS IS A FUNNY SONG! That's what Mike (left) chuckled when he warbled the nifty piano playing of Mary, both inmates of the Selig Zoo, Los Angeles. Mary and Mike make the greatest "brother and sister" team out of vaudeville. When they attack the music everybody goes wild over it. Both are very intelligent. (Int.)



HERE'S Rep. John Kissel of N. Y., who wants House members to work by a timeclock. Has bill to rate their pay by attendance. Advocates pay raise for "real letter" members. (K. & H.)

EXPERT WITH CRANKS! Mildred Owens, one of the only movie weekly women operators in U. S. She "covers" San Francisco and does it very well, too. No picture is too hazardous for her to get. (U. & U.)

ADA TATLOF, Sunday school teacher, protests against permitting scantily clad actresses on beach at Atlantic City while one-piece suiters are barred.

MY PLAYFELLOW! James Wheeler (left), 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Wheeler of Natick, found this deep sea turtle on the shore at Dennisport. He weighs nearly a ton and is apparently laughing. Maybe James is tickling his back.

BABY NEEDS 'EM! "Rolling the bones" is new pasee. Enter the dice top, a hexagon affair with dice numerals. Upper part revolves, lower stationary. Diagrams show how it works. (Int.)

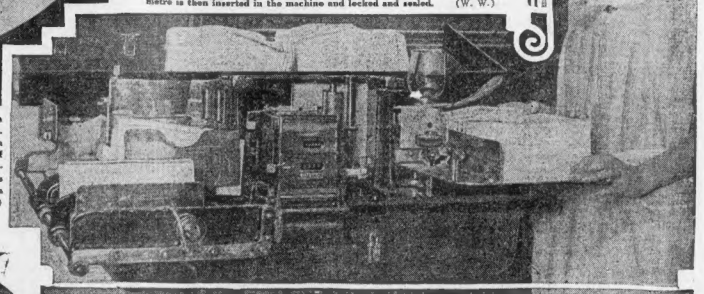
PRINCE YAMASHINO, 23, has just graduated from Jap flying school. Won second lieutenancy. First royal Jap high flier. (U. & U.)

"AMERICA and Australia must stand together on Jap question." This message was delivered to President by Edward E. Eagle, U. S. citizen, from Premier Hughes. (Int.)

MARGIE DOHERTY, 290 Bowen St., So. Boston, wins $5 for this smart photo in sea beauty test. Everybody welcome to enter. Address Pictorial Editor.

HURRY, GIRLS! Enter your name today in the Boston American's swimming race on Aug. 27. Above, Miss Ruth McDermott, 34 Whitfield St., Dorchester, an ardent carnival advocate. It's gonna be a great event.

CAN'T GET STUCK UP! Arthur H. Pitney of Cos Cob, Ct., has been working on a new and speedy postage machine, with the result shown below. Will stamp 250 envelopes a minute. In purchasing the machine the lessee carries the metre inserted on the device to the postoffice, where an employe sets it for the amount of postage desired. Money is paid in advance. The metre is then inserted in the machine and locked and sealed. (W. W.)



PURPLING LEAVES! An ideal blouse for Fall wear. Fashioned of cream net, with pleated frills and a touch of embroidery. Washable. Popular worn with jumper dress of the moment. A Boston American fashion. (U. & U.)

DOPE ON LATEST DOPE RAID! Every conceivable type of "dope" instrument and narcotic was seized in the swooping raid just made in San Francisco. Goods valued at $25,000 were seized and many arrests made. Much of the narcotics was, of course, taken in the Chinese section. The city saw its biggest "dope smoke" when the whole was burned. (Int.)

CUPID'S ON THE RUN! Nelson P. Webster, 21 years an employe at the White House, has (blush, blush) gone and "done it." He's now a love-lulled bridegroom. Been at White House since McKinley's administration. (Int.)

FRIENDLY GENEII! Jackie Coogan has promised Paderewski that he will help the war orphans of Poland. Every cent he receives from the sale of his photographs will go towards providing them with a few comforts. Photo taken on composer's California ranch. (Int.)

WALLACE REID, handsome movie idol, and his beautiful wife, Dorothy Davenport, according to Dame Rumor, agreed to disagree. Miss Davenport, is said to long for the "screen" again.

PARCEL POST SYSTEM FAILS! That is, it failed in one particular. The other day Los Angeles decided to find out if babies could be shipped from one city to another. So little Gloria, Tommy and Nellie were weighed on a special scales on a parcel post wagon and the amount of postage determined—but that is as far as it went. The youngsters, as hungry tots will, sent up a loud and penetrating bellow for food. Then their mothers had to cancel the parcel post trip. (U. & U.)

SILVER TEA SET FIRST PRIZE IN BIG SWIM

Girls who are planning on entering the big swimming contest should look the prizes over at the earliest opportunity and then they will redouble their efforts to be in perfect physical condition for the event.

TION FOR SWIMMERS.

Every possible convenience for the swimmers will be arranged. A team will have charge of their living tent. Nothing will be left ne to make it pleasant for all ne participants.

Mothers need have no fear about their daughters entering the contest. The Swimming Editor invites fathers to accompany their girls and assist them in preparing for the contest on the day of the carnival.

Persons who attend the Boston American's water carnival for the first time are pleasantly surprised. The size of the crowd that flocks to the beautiful esplanade along the river bank is one of the biggest surprises to those not familiar with the detail of the spectacle.

They get more thrills when they see six hundred or more girls battling in the water for first place and are further entertained by the first class exhibition of the fancy divers. If you go once you will always plan to go again.

YALE MEN TAUGHT LINE PLAY TO HARVARD SAYS "POP" GRAVES

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Twenty years ago Major Graves played for Harvard, and as ably that he was a unanimous All-American selection as tackle throughout his college career. In 1905 and 1906, he coached West Point, and in 1907 and 1908, through the efforts of the late President Roosevelt, he returned to Harvard, and we have the word of Percy Haughton that Graves was responsible for the Harvard system of line play, which has been continued with only minor changes since Graves departed. "Pot," since 1912 has been line coach at West Point.

* * *

In consequence of his experience, and his fatherhood of the Harvard line system, which has worked so very effective since Graves introduced it, the text book fresh from the press, will prove of interest to all students of and admirers of the great college pastime, and particularly to those endeavoring to emploit the Harvard system, and to those who expect to oppose the Harvard line this Fall, or the line of other teams which endeavor to follow the Harvard system.

From the general interest standpoint perhaps the most noteworthy feature in the work is Major Graves' admission that he, and through him, Harvard learned its system or line play from Yale, or from the great Yale players of the decade or so prior to 1906.

The major is not exactly complimentary to these sources of information, for he remarks that the Yale men referred to accomplished their line successes through instinct, and that they, being unable either to appreciate the excellence of their tactics, or instruct others in the ways and means of following them, it remained for Harvard to assemble such information and thoroughly instruct coming generations of football men.

Ha, however, gives credit to men like the late Jim Hogan, Bloomer and other Elis for originating, perfecting or exemplying with greatest success certain tricks in offensive and defensive line play.

* * *

"The Line Man's Bible" differs considerably from other football publications, in that its author is not content to deal with generalities. Major Graves "gets down to brass tacks," and almost to brass knuckles, in his treatise, and where his phraseology is perhaps tempered in covering certain tricks of the game, the photographic illustrations he employs make up for the lack.

* * *

Certain elements in Graves' outline of vanguard play will be questioned by proponents of other systems, and with arguments fully as strong as those the major offers.

* * *

He is an avowed supporter of the out-driving ends and line, whereas many coaches and football authorities believe the in-driving system superior, and he believes in the assigning of a definite territory to a player, while some adhere to playing the man rather than the territory. Both issues are and have been debatable, and probably will continue to be until one or the other can more definitely support its argument with achievement.

* * *

In the first instance, Graves argues that the players should not commit themselves to a definite line of action until they are certain what is about to take place, while others will argue that the in-driving system of play, particularly by the ends, will hurry the opponents, and produce faulty execution of plays or misplays that can be turned into advantage by the defensive team.

* * *

In the second instance those opposed to Graves' theory on territory play will rise to inquire, "Why worried about territory if every opponent is covered?"

* * *

Another issue open for debate is Major Graves' contention that the effectiveness of a speedy charge on the part of a football line has been overestimated.

* * *

Still another, that, bulk is the prime requisite of a good lineman.

But notwithstanding the controversies that will develop on such, and still other theories of the Harvard and West Point coach, his "brass tacks" instruction on the fundamentals and tricks in line play seem destined to prove of great service to both players and coaches.

Except as touched upon in his outline "The Line Man's Bible" does not deal with the play of ends and backfield men but confines itself to the line from tackle to tackle.

The several offensive and defensive stances of linemen are described and illustrated, and the use of hands by linemen when on defense also is clearly detailed through description and photograph.

* * *

In at least one of the latter a question of rules is involved. It is named the "knee grab" by Major Graves, and both in its description and illustration, it would seem that the rule against holding an opponent is violated. Major Graves seeks to dismiss that issue by stating the holding is but a momentary action, and consequently not an infraction of the rules, yet a strict interpretation of football laws would not place the same construction on the trick.

* * *

If has been the contention of at least one leading coach that former Harvard teams have employed this "knee grab" rather freely and to a considerable advantage, and that efforts to insist on a strict interpretation and ruling by the officials has failed. With the trick outlines and illustrated in Major Graves' publication it is possible that the football rules committee will be asked for a special ruling on the play.

* * *

Major Graves, in the course of his writing, makes one observation that may or may not be novel, but surely is interesting to students or psychology, when he remarks that all men have an equal amount of courage, and that charges of "yellowness" on the part of a player simply reflect upon the coach in that they show the latter has been unable to bring to the surface the nerve and fighting qualities that the so-called "yellow player" inherently possesses.

NEW STEP TO AID YOUNG GOLF PLAYERS

U. S. G. A. Admits Public Links Club to Membership

In Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A step that may lead to the entrance of scores of young golfers to the championships of the United States Golf Association has been taken in admitting to membership the Lincoln Park Golf Club of Chicago, the first public links club to be admitted.

The Western Golf Association has long had many public course clubs as members and some of the public players have made excellent showings in championships.

Richard Hockenkamp of St. Louis, for example, runner-up by 5 years ago to Harry Legg for the Western Amateur title.

It was largely through Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, a director of the U. S. G. A., that the Lincoln Park club, which boasts only a nine hole links, was taken as a member.

Gardner, who has twice won the National amateur title, has worked for some time to obtain the entrance into championships of some of the clever players produced on park courses.

Chick Evans, present National champion, played his first tournament golf on the public course at Jackson Park.

Nearly all of the many excellent tournament players of St. Louis have been reared on the links in Forest Park, while championships of no mean calibre have been held on the public links in New York, San Francisco, Chicago and other cities.

BENNY LEONARD PLANS PLUNGE INTO BUSINESS

Benny Leonard plans ring retirement and a permanent plunge into the business world.

"But before I hang up my gloves for the last time I am hopeful of cleaning up the lightweight division, taking on the toughest of the welterweights and any middleweight who cares for a battle with me," declared the boss of the lightweights.

"I have been fighting for something like seven years and ever since I became a champion, I have kept fairly busy. It was my ambition when I reached the top to give every formidable foeman a chance. I think I have done this. I have fought every man of my weight who has wanted a battle with the exception of Lew Tendler. The reason I haven't taken him on is because I injured one of my hands while training for a Tendler match. When my hands are right I shall be ready to battle the Philadelphian."

"Ruhe While seems anxious for a fight with me. I am just as eager to mix with White. He doesn't seem to be convinced that I got the better one, but I think that I could dispel any doubts that he might have in a second meeting. Frankly, I would like to take on White again when I am in superb physical condition and show just what I could do against him.

"In fact, when some promoters were looking around for an opponent for me, I suggested the name of White. I thought the name of the Westerner would be a drawing card. One promoter had different ideas and didn't think that a battle between White and myself would draw well enough to warrant him offering good purses. But if any promoter ever gets the idea that another fight with White would be worth while, I'll certainly be glad to accommodate White.

And that goes for every other lightweight. I have fought most of them—and whipped the bulk. Some of them gave me tough fights—others didn't. Everyone is welcome to a return match if they can influence a promoter into staging the fight. And if I can't get action in the lightweight division within the next month or two I am going to begin picking on the welterweights. And before I am finally through with the ring, I hope to battle the toughest middleweights that are now in harness.

"I have done nearly everything that has been asked of me as a lightweight and I am still willing to continue fighting men of my own bulk. But if there is no one left in that division to keep me busy, I'll start out soon after the first of the year and take on the bigger fellows.

* * *

Just a short time ago I formed a partnership with Herman Timperi, a New York theatrical producer, and we are perfecting plans now which call for putting on shows and vaudeville sketches. The success of that venture depends somewhat upon my giving it a large portion of my time. I don't want ring work or anything else to interfere with my outside business. I'll remain active in ring harness while there is someone left for me to fight. But if there are no more opponents it is quite likely that before 1922 rolls around I'll have gone into retirement.

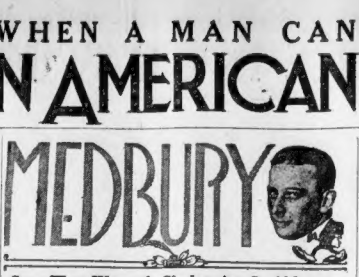
* * *

"Meanwhile, if the boys want to keep me busy they can just chase those challenges along to me. Interest promoters—and I'll take them on."

Peabody Ten Mile Run

Beverly, Aug. 18.—The Father Mathew C. T. A. S. of Peabody, will hold a ten-mile road race on August 26. The course will be through Danvers, Beverly and Salem with the finish at O'Shea Field. Entries will close with John Devaney, Box 155, Peabody, on August 24.

MEDBURY



Says That Women's Clothes Are So Abbreviated the Moths Are Starving to Death

The dress reformers don't object to the clothes that the girls are wearing. All they ask is that the girls wear more of them.

It's all right to wear late clothes, but some of them are too tardy.

It's nice for the girls to be patriotic, but there's no sense in them wearing their skirts half-mast.

When the women were wearing skirts that dragged on the ground the germs used to be able to go wherever they were going.

Now the germs have to walk.

Before a germ can get on a woman's skirt these days he has to notice jumping.

It used to be that a dressmaker could make one dress in twelve hours. Now she can make twelve dresses in one hour.

If the union workers can't have shorter hours they can at least have shorter dresses.

The dress reformers say that dresses should reach to the shoe tops. If they can't make the dresses lower, they should make the shoes higher.

There should be a happy medium. A happy medium is a fortune-teller who's been left a million dollars.

These dress reformers want the women's clothes to fit them like the big top over the circus grounds. If they had their way about it, Omar the Tent-Maker, would be the modiste.

Small coats are also in style and one of the coats are so small that are isn't room in them for the label.

Pretty soon they'll just put sleeves on the label and wear that.

They're making the clothes so abbreviated this year that the moths is starving to death by the thousands.

The average suit isn't big enough to give a moth indigestion.

They have to eat the moth balls to keep from dying from hunger.

There's one thing about the clothes: we can always see the moths in them. The suits are so small there isn't room for a moth to hide.

Of course some of them can get breakfast, lunch and dinner out of a suit, but they have a hard job eating between meals.

With the skirts the women are wearing today you can't say that they have no visible means of support.

THREE FEATURE EVENTS FOR REVERE

"Bowl of Gold" and Pursuit Races at Cycle Track Wednesday

The bike fans are in for a real old-time session at the Revere Track Wednesday night. Three feature events have been listed in addition to the regular card of professional and amateur sprint races.

The star attraction is "Bold d' Or" (Bowl of Gold) race. This event will be behind the motors and over the one-hour route. Georges Seres of France, Charles Verkyn of Belgium and George Wiley will be the starters. Seres, the Olympic champion, is the favorite, but rail birds look to see "Midget" Wiley and "Lanky" Verkyn in the van when the gun announces the finish.

Second in importance will be the pursuit race between Warren Holbrook and Hardy Jackson.

A unique feature will be an exhibition of trick and fancy riding by Carson and Stevie, two one-legged athletes, who are said to be wonders in their line.

Jenkins' Orphanage Band of South Carolina, made up of 35 pickaninnies, will give a concert of popular and jazz music before and during the races. Owing to the long program the concert will start at 7:30.

Lexington Competition

A four ball, best ball, one-half combined handicap event will be staged next Saturday afternoon, over the links of the Lexington Golf Club, in North Lexington. On the following Saturday the play will be handicap vs. par.

MLLE. LENGLEN AND MRS. MALLORY TO MEET IN OPENING MATCH

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen's first match on American courts will be played this afternoon against Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, present United States titleholder. Under the original program, Mlle. Lenglen was to have played Miss Eleanor Goss of New York. Miss Goss, however, announced during the forenoon that her default to Mlle. Lenglen was due to illness.

As the French woman was one round behind the field in the tournament Miss Goss' default advances her to the second round and the draw brings her against Mrs. Mallory.

The match which will undoubtedly be one of the feautres of the thirty-fourty annual tournament for the women's championship, couples the undefeated champion of all of Europe and the leading woman player in America.

Later in the day the schedule called for a doubles match with Mlle. Lenglen and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory paired against Miss Margaret Grove and Miss Phyllis Walen.

Another feature match on today's schedule brought Miss Mary K. Browne and Mrs. DeForest Candee together. Miss Eleonora Sears and Miss Edith Sigourney, both of Boston, and Miss Leslie Bancroft and Mrs. Benjamin R. Cole, also of the "Hub," were the other players booked for the exhibition courts.

Bright, pleasant weather was the order again today and the officials of the Lawn Tennis Association were confident that the second round would be finished with the same dispatch that marked the disposal of 82 first-round matches yesterday.

For the most part favorites came through first round matches according to expectations on Monday. Mrs. Mallory's well-earned and impressive victory over Mrs. Jessup was the star match of the day.

The national champion exhibited the same great brand of tennis for which she has become famous in her disposal of Mrs. Jessup in straight sets in a match that was full of thrills during the first half and stamped the champion a one big hope against Mlle. Lenglen.

Miss Mary Brown and Mrs. Bundy, California's candidates for the title, came through with easy victories yesterday.

Boston's four entrants—Miss Sears, Miss Bancroft, Miss Sigourney and Mrs. Cole, the national bay courts champion, also entered the second round with flying colors, though two of these players will be eliminated today as they are to fight it out among themselves.

Other capable players to survive the first round were Miss Phyllis Walsh and Mrs. Gilbert Harvey, Philadelphia, Mrs. Helene S. Falk, of New York, and Miss Bayard, of South Hill, N. J.; V. Hutchins, of Mexico City, Helen Gilsaukaul, of Godney Par. N. Y. Miss Mildred Willard, Merion, Pa., Mrs. Robert Leroy, New York, and Miss Deborah Seal, Cricket Club, were also an winners.

COMMISSION PLANNING SHAKEUP IN OFFICIALS

By JACK CONWAY.

The Boxing Commission is planning a radical shakeup among the young men who are permitted to officiate at ring contests in Massachusetts, according to chief gossip carrier Dame Rumor. We fervently hope Dame Rumor has erred in her deductions as there is plenty of room for improvement in the system of judging and refereeing boxing bouts in this State.

The system of having two judges and a referee is a good one, provided you can secure capable officials. The majority of the referees are efficient men. Most of them have had years of experience and are fit to handle important bouts. This much cannot be said for the judges. This writer has been attending boxing bouts for a good many years and we must confess that we never even heard of the majority of the men who are permitted to judge ring contests in Massachusetts. It is said that one judge recently confessed that the first time he saw a professional bout was when he was sent to one of the local clubs by the Boxing Commission.

A manager of a world's champion boxer was recently asked to have his protege box in Massachusetts. Here is his reply:

"Nothing doing. Do you think I would be crazy enough to leave a championship at the mercy of inexperienced judges? There are a dozen referees in Massachusetts whom I would be glad to have decide a match in which my title holder might figure. These gentlemen know the boxing game. But when it comes to some of the licensed judges in Massachusetts, they are impossible."

Nate Siegel apparently intends to keep hounding Eddie Shevlin until the latter gives him recognition. Messrs. Conley and Carter, twin managers of the fleeter warrior, today hurled another shot into the Shevlin camp.

"Shevlin is yellow" declared these gentlemen. "Seigel is entitled to a bout with Shevlin if the latter is really sincere in his threat to meet all-comers. We don't believe, however, that Shevlin wants any of Seigel's game. The Roxbury welterweight is afraid to enter a ring with the said Jr. chronicler. That's why we say Shevlin is yellow."

LIPTON GIVES UP LIFE AIM OF LIFTING CUP

Famous Yachtsman Cannot Afford Expense of Fitting Out a New Challenger

London, Aug. 16—Sir Thomas Lipton has definitely announced his intention of withdrawing from further competition for the America's cup. Sir Thomas has been the challenger for the trophy on five occasions, but has never succeeded in bringing it to this country. He has spent a fortune in his efforts to lift the cup, and has been a popular figure in international yachting circles.

Sir Thomas' decision to withdraw from the contests is due to the fact that he cannot afford the expense of fitting out a new challenger. He has been a heavy loser in the past, and has been unable to find a backer for the next race.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Stratea Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her parents unite how York high society has admired by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wycherly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. The Dankmere galleries are opened and Quarren takes a few days off at Wisch-Hollow. Stratea tells him she is to marry Langly Sprowl. He tells her that he loves her. Stratea tells him the story of her marriage to Lords. He returns to town and finds Westguard paying a lively court in the art gallery. Quarren hires a pretty stenographer. Dankmere falls in love with her. Stratea divorces Sprowl's brat category and refuses to marry him. Mrs. Sarowle asks Langly to go to Newport. Mary Ledwith, but he refuses and threatens her

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

A little girl in a poor family has to wash a great many dishes. Some one began to sympathize with her one day, remarking what "drudgery" it must be.

"No," she replied. "It's a great fun. I have given every dish a name, and they are all my children—my dolls—I talk to them while I am washing them and drying them. I pretend that I am dressing them. I like to have them all nice and clean. And I'm sure they like me for looking after them so well. It's lots of fun."

This column is written in response to a reader who encloses the following newspaper paragraph:

"Too hot for church.

"A man will chase a golf ball all over the links because it's too hot to go to church."

* * *

Isn't that delicious? But isn't there a lot of truth in it? Don't we see the same thing happening in various phases of life?

Now, why is it that a man will walk five miles up-hill and down-dale through long grass and thickets after golf courses and feel infinite pleasure from it, whereas this same man would growl like a bear were he asked to go to the street car or automobile force him to walk half a mile?

Or how comes it that a woman will jump around a tennis court until she is ready to drop from exhaustion and spill food all over the place without having a delightful time, whereas she would feel half-killed were she to do the same kind of work whatsoever that made her sweat one-tenth as much?

The answer is that things are to be what we think they are, that everything depends upon the mental attitude we adopt toward what we do.

I know hardly a single man who has achieved conspicuous success who didn't very early in life learn to enjoy work and to find in it more satisfaction than in any theatre going or ballyard playing or any other form of amusement.

Edison was actually thrown out of school when a very young lad because he was too hopelessly dull-minded. His teachers said, to learn anything. Yet Edison simply couldn't be kept away from conducting all sorts of experiments, and practically most of his earlier ones were totally unsuccessful. His very first "chemical" experiment ended almost like the other fellow. But Edison conceived the brilliant idea that if he could induce a boy to blow bubbles bedtime and then jump off a high wall, he boy would fly through the air. The boy tried the direction was straight for the earth, which he hit with such force that a court-martial was immediately held. The company decision was duly published. Edison, however, loved experimentation so much that it became his work rather his life play, for he enjoys nothing so much as his daily activities.

Many years ago a Southern youth landed in New York and started a humble tobacco factory in the lowest part of the city. He ate his frugal meals in a cheap Bowery lunch room and slept in a hall bedroom which cost him $2.50 a week. He was so engrossed in his work that, as he afterward told me, "I hated when the time came that I had to stop work at night, and was glad when the time came when I could start early next morning." Today he is the leading tobacco magnate in the world and possesses a fortune of probably $50,000,000. He is James B. Duke.

In Chicago a tiny toddler used to be taken down to the stock yards by his grandfather. Each week he was given a new whip and paid a dollar for it. Every day's work, driving the man in the cattle pens, pig pens and sheep pens. As the child grew he found sheep and pigs and steers more fascinating than anything else in the world. He remembered those young days so well he could divorce him too long from the stock yards. Although he is not yet thirty years old, young Lester Morris, president of Morris & Co., is acknowledged by those in the packing industry to be about the best of them all. Not so long ago he astounded Washington investigators by his encyclopedic knowledge of every detail of the packing business.

Don't you know workers who are more interested in their duties than in anything else and who find pure joy in their work? In short, there are workers in all walks of life who apply themselves to their jobs with joy in their hearts and who, in turn, derive joy from their jobs.

It isn't so much your position, as your disposition toward your position, that counts.

Strive to look upon your work as the most interesting thing in the world and see if you don't find that it becomes so.

Remember the little [illegible] and her wishes.

LOW RECORD FOR INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER

Weakness in Marks Serves to Unsettle Foreign Exchange in New York

New York, Aug. 16.—Professional selling of speculative issues was actively resumed in the opening of today's stock market.

Shares which accelerated the recent reaction were all weakened, notably oils, rubbers, tobaccos and the high active equipments. Steel and Petroleum, United States Rubber, first preferred, United Retail Stores, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward were also sold to new points, the latter extending a new low price for the year.

Industrial Alcohol and Continental Can extended yesterday's declines, while Baldwin Locomotive's feature was a one point decline in Louisville & Nashville.

Foreign exchange further manifestations of the greater weakness of marks, which were quoted at 1.90 cents.

Shorts effected further impairment of prices in almost every branch of the list during the forenoon. Little support was seen safe in the higher-priced railroad shares. Bethlehem and Crucible steels were heavy and losses of one to four points were suffered by the moderate offerings of American Steel Foundries, Railway Steel Spring, Pressed Steel Car, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric and New York Air Brake. Famous Players-Lasky preferred, the leader of the oils, losing almost three points.

Chandler, Studebaker, Industrial Alcohol, International Paper, American Woolen, American Sugar, American International and National Lead forfeited one to two points.

Call money opened at 6 per cent.

It is reported that a local operator sold 5,000 shares of Central Leather late in the forenoon at 26 cents, the equivalent of the dividend declared. The result was a reduction of 2½, whereas the range of the quotations in July was between 31½ and 33½.

The call rate at New York fails to establish any firmer tone, ruling at the time money department. Money, to some extent, is finding its way back to the metropolis.

This notwithstanding that cropmoving operations are under way. The answer is that the holding movement by farmers has ended and both grain and cotton are selling freely in large volume to market. Receipts of grain and of cotton at principal markets—particularly those of the past week—are totally unsuccessful. His very first "chemical" experiment ended almost like the other fellow. But Edison conceived the brilliant idea that if he could induce a boy to blow bubbles bedtime and then jump off a high wall, the boy would fly through the air. The boy tried the direction was straight for the earth, which he hit with such force that a court-martial was immediately held. The company decision was duly published. Edison, however, loved experimentation so much that it became his work rather his life play, for he enjoys nothing so much as his daily activities.

STEADY SELLING IS PRODUCTIVE OF GLOOM

Wall Street Vainly Tries to Rally; New Low Levels in Industrials

By BROADAN WALL

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Aug. 16.—The announcement of the tax revision which some traders had hoped would cause a rally in the market was totally ignored at the opening Monday and steady selling of Industrials commenced right at the gong. This continued for the first hour, after which dullness set in. Just before the close another attack at prices put practically the whole list off for the day.

The rails, in which so much hope has been put, acted sluggish throughout, almost the entire session with the exception of a slight rally in the coppers right at the gong, about held their strength; but that was all, as most traders are waiting for more rate cuts before becoming enthused.

THICK WITH GLOOM.

Despite the efforts of those in high places to create optimism, the gloom is now more thick in the Street than for many weeks and the good news passes unnoticed.

The London market was also dull at the close on the 5th financial situation has not been removed.

Sterling exchange is now low price of 4.12, which other exchanges were fairly firm but displayed an irregular undertone. The call rate ruled at 6 per cent. Until the abundant funds now in the country are put in active circulation and the stock market need not worry about the money.

DOWN TO NEW LOWS.

Further liquidation in the Industrials right at the opening with the main attention centered on U. S. Rubber, Asphalt and the Central Leathers. While the offerings were not what could be called heavy they came in a steady flow, which soon put these issues down to new lows.

The death of Colonel Colt was attributed in some quarters to the further attacks on Rubber.

The equipment stocks held fairly well during the forenoon, but while the motors were subject to some pressure in sympathy with Rubber's action Chandler was the only one to give way. It sold down to its previous low of 46, but then held fairly well.

Mexican Petroleum and Pan Petroleum were favorites, showing relative activity than for the last fortnight. There was renewed talk of the dividend which will be taken up in the latter part of this month. The Pan Petroleum, of course, is dependent on the Mexican Petroleum dividend and all assurances of those close to the company are to the effect that the regular declaration will be made.

Town and City Loans

Frankfurtans sold $10,000 2 per cent. coupon bonds of Frankfurt-Aregau Power Company, due 1926 to 1965 inclusive, at 85 and interest, to yield 7.50 per cent. Bonds due in less than ten years not considered.

Los Angeles sold $1,000,000 bonds, awarded bidders offering par and 25 per hundred dollars bonds, awarded bidders offering par and 25 cents, Other bidders were National City Co., Bolles & Co., Los Angeles, $1,000,000; Blyth, Witter & Co., $1,000,000; Guaranty Trust, Hanna, Ballin & Co., Los Angeles, $1,000,000; Anglo & London Paris, $1,000,000; Harris Small Lawson 100.44.

Kresge's Big Gain

It is believed that the Kresge Company will this year show a net profit of not less than $2,000,000 as compared with a $2,000,000 deficit for the first months of the year and a net profit of $1,000,000 for the last half of the company's fiscal year. $2,027,000 of sales for the first 15 days of August, as against the last five months of the year would mean $4,100,000 in excess of the 1920 total.

Mexican Oil Exports

The principal American oil companies exported 1,000,000 barrels of crude oil from Mexican ports in July, from June. The biggest drop was shown by the Mexican Eagle, which exported 300,000 barrels less than 250,000 barrels, against nearly 2,500,000 in June. Other companies showed a gain of 250,000 barrels. It is announced intention of taking all its tank steamers out of the Mexican trade.

Corporation Report

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Steadiness in the rails and unsettled monetary events in the industrials summarize the action of the stock market Monday. Following a trading standpoint, the tendence was far from encouraging, as the features of special weakness, which were quite numerous, served to give the market its tone. New low levels appeared in quite a number of issues, and were not confined to any particular group. Some idea of the range of weakness may be gathered from a list comprising American International, Continental Candy, International Paper, International Harvester, Utah Copper, Central Leather, Allied Chemical, U. S. Rubber, Industrial Alcohol and Chandler Motors.

THERE is little doubt that liquidation was largely responsible for the decline, although the usual bear pressure may have given added emphasis to the downward movement. Little attention was paid to the improved outlook for relief for the railroads except so much as it may have served to keep this group steady. The equipments showed a tendency to ease, but were not weak.

TRADE news over the week-end is somewhat more encouraging. Western jobbing centres report an increased demand for cotton goods, and there are reports of slightly more activity in the steel industry. There will have to be a decided betterment, however, before sentiment in regard to the outlook of the stock market becomes cheerful.

THE market was largely a repetition of the recent market sessions in which liquidation in special issues was the chief feature in the offerings. There was nothing in the day's news, either favorable or unfavorable, so far as the securities markets were concerned. A report that the railroad funding bill would be passed today served to bring a short-lived rally in the railroads. In some cases this weakness was maintained to the close.

A DISTINCT feature of weakness in the afternoon session was International Harvester. There has been pressure for many months liquidation on this stock by important interests. This liquidation again was in evidence and carried the price to a new low at 68¼. Short covering before the close resulted only in a fractional recovery.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL, which has been under pressure of liquidation sales for some time, was another weak feature. The impression is general that when the directors meet to act on the dividend it will be passed.

IT is understood that the General Motors report, covering operations for the first half year, will be extremely favorable. Preliminary estimates in quarters usually well informed indicate a profit for the first six months of approximately $14,000,000 after charging off losses on price adjustments made to dealers. Should this figure be correct, it will show nearly $1 per share earned on the 10,000,000 shares of common stock outstanding. The favorable report from General Motors did not help Chandler, which declined to a new low level and rallied toward the close only on the covering by shorts. It is understood that scale buying for investment accounts is in progress, but there is no attempt to absorb offerings that come into the market at any given figure.

U. S. RUBBER, both common and preferred, declined to new low levels. Some of the selling was supposed to be due to the death of Colonel Colt, but from which have been in close touch with the leading interests that the selling is for the account of individuals who are in need of funds.

A SIMILAR reason underlies the selling of Utah Copper which was the weakest feature in the copper group. Anaconda showed a decline in sympathy with the offering of Utah, but it was reported that offerings were being absorbed by strong interests.

THE tobacco group showed weakness for the first time since the rise in the general market culminated ten days ago. United Retail Store was the weakest issue of the group. There is some talk of dividend reduction, although no definite date has been set for the meeting of directors to act upon it. It is anticipated that a meeting will be held some time this month, although the payment is not due until October 1. July sales show a decline of 5 per cent. from the same month last year, although total sales for the seven months period are 11 per cent. larger than last year.

THE STREET is mystified by the action of Famous Players Lasky. It is understood that the company is earning $24 per share per year and that the present rate of 8 per cent. will be maintained when the directors meet next Monday. The intimation was given in some quarters that this

BOSTON MARKET IS QUIET AND HEAVY

General Electric Goes to Lowest Point It Has Reached in Years

Trading in the local market was quiet and heavy in tone. General Electric was at its lowest in many years at 111½, off 2¼ points. Cuddahy Packing was up 6 points on its first sales in weeks. Other packing issues were lower, Swift & Co. losing a point and Libby a point. Woolens, common, and Mexican Investment were each a point lower.

Small gains were recorded by Woolen pfd. and Copper Range.

Calumet & Arizona lost $4 of a point and other fractional losses were made by Calumet Hecla, Waldorf, Nipissing and West End. Many issues were unchanged from yesterday's closing prices.

The Boston Curb was moderately strong and active this morning.

Boston & Montana, Eureka, Mutual and Crystal were the leaders. Boston & Montana lost 4 cents at 85 cents, and Eureka, 2 cents, at 39 cents. Mutual gained 5 cents, at 35 cents, and Crystal 2 cents, at 8 cents. Purchases were made by Majestic, 2 cents, at 7 cents; Palmarle, 2 cents, at 29 cents, and Silver Reef, ½ cent, at 4½ cents. Alpha lost a cent at 78 cents.

Boston Financial Notes

Waltham's 1921 tax rate is $26, an increase of $2 a unit over last year. The rate was $21.50; $1.50; Danvers, $24.80, an increase of $4.10.

The Bridgeport bond issue of $10,000,000 authorized by the electors of Bridgeport, Conn., August 17, 1921, and matured April 17, 1922, was awarded to a syndicate composed of Lee, Higginson & Co., Boston, and Bridgeport Machine Company, Springfield, 1,500 shares (par $100), 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock without par value. Jaeger-Bleakow Company, Boston, $175,000.

Town and County Loans

Northampton will receive proposals until 11:30 a. m., August 20, for a temporary loan of $100,000, dated August 23, and maturing August 23, and maturing February 24, 1922.

Lowell sold $100,000 bonds, awarded at 2 p. m., August 16, for discount of a temporary loan, dated August 16, and maturing August 30, 1921, without par value. Jaeger-Bleakow Company, Boston, $175,000.

IT is reported that in connection with the reparations payments, German agents here will deposit approximately $5,000,000 with the agents in this city this month. The usual procedure has been for deposits to be made with the Federal Reserve Bank by the banks representing the Germans and the transfer of these funds to the banks representing the Allies on the due date of payment. The Federal Reserve Bank does not recognize any one nation, but handles the operation as a debit and credit transfer on its books. Direct deposit by the German agents with the British and French agents in the respective countries is a departure from the methods heretofore in force. It is understood that the Federal Reserve Bank now has approximately $5,000,000 of such deposits.

INTIMATION from the Federal authorities that speculation in foreign exchange by those making reparations payments must stop, apparently were not taken seriously in some quarters, as was indicated by the spectacular rise in sterling exchange here. That Washington is fully intended to serve a warning is indicated by the announcement that in connection with the dismemberment conference, conferences will be held looking toward the stabilization of foreign exchange. Bankers are inclined to take more seriously the previous warning from the capital.

"A WISE CHILD" MELODRAMA ON NEW LINES

Helenne Segal Hits All Kinds of High Spots in Dillingham Piece at Colonial

By FRED J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

The "like it or not" manner in which the Dillingham crowd has been going to the wall with their usual unanimity of the last few months, and Billy Dillingham, the theatrical pioneer, than whom there are few —weder, seems to have doped it out that this is the psychological time for swung back to the old-fashioned melodrama.

"Has anybody got an old fashioned melodrama?" you can hear him asking his actors.

Then up spake Rida Johnson Young: "I have one," said she, "and it's a peach. There is a heroine who can play a character part, dances, and sings like a machine gun; comedy prima donna."

"Take her away," quoth Dillingham to the commander of his body-guard, Colonel Hinton. "There ain't no such person."

And just then Vivienne Segal blew in to see what was doing on the Dillingham.

A SOMBRE OPENING.

And this is the truthful and accurate genesis of "A Wise Child," which was ushered in for the first time on any stage at the Colonial last night.

When the curtain ascended upon "A Wise Child" we found ourselves in the library of a melancholy, ancient, ill, sombre, room with the shelves completely filled with real books. Why, the books alone must have cost—but what if they did?

The millionaire was sitting in a wheel chair and was engaged in regretting that he had driven his wife and child out into the snow some fifteen long years before. Between regrets he made things unpleasant for some of his relatives who were around hoping he would die in the first act. The dialogue along about here would have done credit to Theodore Kremer in his best days. But a trusty lawyer had been tracking down his long-lost daughter and in a few minutes in she came. It was Vivienne.

THEN COMES COMEDY.

Things brightened up immediately. Miss Segal put on not a regular melodrama long lost daughter. It seemed she hadn't been brought up with usual cars that long lost daughters got in melodrama, and she had been permitted to go into vaudeville.

Thus she immediately began to supply comedy, and oh how we had needed it. Let us say right away that the little Segal girl is a good actress considering that she has had only talked between songs and dances in musical comedy, and that nothing improves the situation her vaudeville partner, an earnest but awkward juvenile who looked like page in the play, but Douglas Stevenson when he registered at the Copley-Plaza, well known in it and they performed their act for the edification of the dying millionaire.

Despite all efforts to make Vivienne interesting to the job, and a promise was made by which the parent agreed to set his page up in a cabaret restaurant so that they could be near to New York.

WE GO TO A CABARET.

In the second act we went to the cabaret, a scene done with the tenderness that only a Dillingham could restore to cabarets. Vivienne wore a marvelous gown, and sang two songs about her own composition, and a regular melodrama trick brought in the dying father. It was a well, well, wore faultless evening regalia and was going the pace in daughter's jazz party when the old man died. He looked as though the show were over when it suddenly developed that Vivienne was not the daughter at all; and on top of that the old man lost all his money, his relatives walked away from him and who should support him but Vivienne, despite her lack of relationship. Vivienne in the last act she proved that bread cast upon the water will come back after many days in the form of chocolate cream pie.

There is a lot of sentiment in "A Wise Child," and if it's true the movie folks have the old stuff again, here it is. But with so many actors out of work in New York why not had Dillingham couldn't get better ones, for aside from Miss Segal, Mr. Stevenson, Robert McWade, as the father, and Charles Abbe as a butler, the support was second rate.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—Last night at the Tremont Theatre began the final three weeks of the engagement of George M. Cohan's "Cohanissance" in their musical comedy, "The O'Brien Girl." The concluding performance will be Saturday, September 3.

GLOBE THEATRE—Despite the fact that last night was the beginning of the sixteenth week in Boston of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," now current at the Globe Theatre, the picture is receiving high favor with the amusement-seeking public of the city.

Selwyn Park Square Theatre

Nina Varesi in "Enter Madame," one of last season's big hits in New York, opened its season at the Selwyn Theatre last night. It will be reviewed in detail in Wednesday's American.

MODERN AND BEACON—Another sparkling comedy-drama was presented yesterday at the Modern and Beacon theatres, with Bebe Daniels, always a gay and dashing little figure, supporting most of the success. Alice Brady, in "Little Italy," is the other feature of the bill. Once the story of "Forever" by Elinor Wylie and William A. Brady has proven her rare ability as a motion picture actress.

BOSTON THEATRE—Tom Mix did another good job when, as star, he made "After Your Own Heart" for William Fox. And his supporting cast have plenty of opportunity to shine. "After Your Own Heart" was shown for the first time here yesterday at the Boston Theatre.

OTHER THEATRES

ORPHEUM THEATRE—There was plenty of variety in the entertainment offered yesterday at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. The bill as a whole is one of unusual excellence, being topped by Dorcas and company, an aggregation of versatile performers, who presented a remarkably clever dancing sketch. Another bright spot on the program is Mullaly, McCarthy and company, in their comedy skit, "Thanksgiving Eve."

PARK THEATRE—Rubye De-Remer, the noted film star, selected by Paul Hallen, the celebrated French artist, as America's most beautiful woman, is appearing this week in "The Way Women Love" at the Park Theatre. Miss DeRemer and Hallen, the celebrated mystery novel of Herman Landon, which appeared in magazine form under the name of "Behind Green Portieres."

The name qualities that gave "Lasca," "The Pire-Cat" and "The Spitfire" such a high favor with the dramatic sped of a masterful story, the realism given to the characters and the sharply screen personality of the star, Edith Roberts, is in "Luring Lips," the other feature.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—The announcement of the presentation of a paramount picture starring William S. Hart served to pack Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre with an enthusiastic audience last night. The attraction was "The Whistle," a play of New England life, and in it Mr. Hart is the foreman of a mill. Despite the fact that the story is radically different from any in which Mr. Hart has been seen in recent products, the humor anecdotal and drama served to put it over with the fans with unmistakable emphasis.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH AND OLYMPIA—Never in the realm of recklessness of good womanhood when friendship sounds the call for succor been more splendidly exemplified than in "The Oath," the R. A. Walsh production, now associated First National Pictures, which opened at Gordon's Old South and Gordon's Olympia Theatres yesterday. The scene in which Irene Merriam sacrifices everything for the sake of her husband's friend is the most dramatic which has been shown on the screen in years.

GORDON'S STRAND—One of the scenes in Maurice Tourneur's superdrama, "The Foolish Matrons," which is at Gordon's Strand, Upham's Corner, the first half of this week, is an exclusive cafe in the fashionable quarter of New York city. It is not the sort of cafe, however, that advertises its peerless cabaret and other exclusive features. Behind the granite and glare of New York there are countless cafes where advertising would only detract from their business. It is one of these cafes that men about town frequent with young women who would not be seen in the generally known places.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—Chief Buffalo Bear and Princess Buffalo Bear captivated the audience at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. They recently asked President Harding to set aside "Indian Day" in honor of the Sioux who fought in the World War. Thomas Meighan was viewed in the Paramount feature, "The Easy Road."

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQUARE —Deep in the heart of every man and woman is a lost romance—a wistful desire for what might have been, and so the great picture, "The Lost Romance," now appearing at Cambridge Central Square Theatre, based on that great theme, is given close with the lives of millions.

Norumbega Park

Norumbega Park's theatre bill, which started the week yesterday matinee, has a vaudeville showing which is as good as any ever seen in the high-priced vaudeville theatre in any part of the country. The outstanding feature of the entertainment is William Carleton, having the star role in the Vic Champagnolle feature drama, "The Inside of the Cup."

SCANLAN SCORES TRIUMPH IN NEW PLAY

Thrills Audience by Singing During "Irish Eyes" at Plymouth Theatre

"Walter Scanlan thrilled me as much as John McCormack ever did!"

A Boston music lover was talking. The scene was in the lobby of the Plymouth Theatre after the opening performance of "Irish Eyes."

"Scanlan is a wonder," continued the speaker. "He has that something in his voice that can make one happy and then and and then happy again."

Scanlan has sung those selfsame several hundred times and you have the opinion of the first night's audience of the city of Walter Scanlan.

NEW COMEDY OF LOVE.

"Irish Eyes" is a new comedy of love, songs and pretty scenes. It has the punch that has been missing from American life since the camel learned to spit.

Walter Scanlan runs through the entire show, in the vernacular. Between the songs he sings are the following: "Mavourneen", "My Galway Bonny", "The Road to My Love", "An Irish Song Will Live as Long as Life and Love Shall Last", "I Was a Pilgrim in Loveland", "Kathleen", and a number of old melodies.

Scanlan's voice is a sparkling affair, abundant with real humor and unique situations. It is written by Edward E. Rose, author of "The Rosary" and "The Way to Kenmare."

RICH VEIN OF HUMOR.

Apparently Mr. Rose realized that something was needed to make us ordinary folk forget about the trials of the day. He not only has the high class music running all through his production, but the spoken lines are also rich in their humor and filled with life.

Walter Scanlan, though a rather remarkable young man, does not occupy all the time and attention of the audience. The "star" is obliged to work hard every minute he is before the footlights in order to keep Charles Wy Dingis, Bennett R. Finn, Jimmy Doyle, Clair Cody, Albert West, Miss Frederica Going, Miss Olive Meehan and Miss Lydia Kane from getting his rung at the top of the ladder of laughs and appreciation.

Go and hear Scanlan sing. You will like him immensely. You will also enjoy the rich, clean comedy of the show.

Free Fireworks at Revere

The group of amusement managers at Revere Beach made the proper selection when they decided to give a series of free fireworks exhibitions at this popular seashore resort, as was attested by the great throng that attended last night's exhibition. The exhibition will be repeated tomorrow and Friday nights and in the event of inclement weather will be postponed to the following evening.

Coming Events

SHUBERT THEATRE — The Shubert Theatre season will open next Monday evening with William A. Brady's new production for Alice Brady, "Drifting," by John Cotton and Daisy H. Andrews, staged by John Cromwell.

WILBUR THEATRE—The opening attraction of the season at the Wilbur Theatre, next Monday, will be "The Dumbells, an organization of Canadian soldiers, all of whom saw active service overseas.

TREMONT TEMPLE—A fact that will prove welcome news to the great number of motion picture fans of this city is the announcement that the Tremont Temple will open its new season Monday evening, August 29, presenting for the first time in Boston William Fox's wonder picture, "Over the Hill."

HOLMAN A HIT IN NEW BILL AT KEITH'S

"Hard Boiled Hampton," Character Skit, Abounds in Sparkling Comedy

Harry Holman and his company in "Hard Boiled Hampton," a sparkling skit possessing more plot and more fun than many a three-act comedy that has reached the legitimate stage, head an excellent bill at Keith's Theatre this week. Holman is a born character actor, and nature, giving him generous proportions and an imposing front, fit him to the life for the impersonation of the "hard boiled" but whimsical business man he portrays. He is assisted by Grace Bishop and Florence Crowley.

Wellington Cross, musical comedy star, appears in an act that is distinctive, and is aided by Dean Moore, accomplice before and during the act. The Courtney sisters, Florence and Fay, delighted the audience at the opening performance with a pretty selection of songs, chiefly Irish and Southern. They are assisted by an exceptionally good string quintet.

Johnson, acrobat and trapeze performer, opened the bill. He is followed by Paul Nolan, a juggler, advertising himself as "The Jesting Swede." Elsie Piaget and Dudley Douglas divide chief honors with Holman and his supporting company in a bewildering medley of smart dances, songs and gowns.

The other two acts are also good. They are Wylie and Hartman in "Before and After Taking"; and Rekin and Galetti in a novelty comedy skit. There are also usual screen cartoons and "Topics of the Day."

Esperanto—Language For All

Would It Work? Would One Language Do for the Human Race? Some Day, but Not an Artificial Language

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Sacramento, Aug. 5, 1921.

Dear Sir:

Today I read about "one part of China fighting another part of China" for the main reason that we do not understand each other. And lack of understanding is the trouble everywhere, and that is why I am very much interested in the International Language Esperanto.

It is useless for me to try to explain its importance.

I would be very pleased if you would say a few words about it some day.

Thanking you in advance, very truly yours, Emil Broglio, No. 629 Pea street, Sacramento, Cal.

Esperanto is a language manufactured, scientifically. Its creators endeavored to make up a language that would be easy for all to learn, simple, and that might be used all over the world.

The idea was that if men spoke the SAME language everywhere, they would understand each other, come in contact with each other, cease to fight and kill each other.

Our correspondent, Mr. Broglio of Sacramento, believes that great results might come from ONE language supplementing others.

The suggestion should not be rejected hastily. There is no doubt that if all the people of the world spoke the same language, it would be easier to arrive at an understanding. There is also unfortunately no doubt that misunderstandings remain where the same language IS spoken.

Look at the Irish and English, for instance. They all speak English, except a few Irish that intentionally specialize in Gaelic. Esperanto wouldn't do THEM any good, for speaking English on both sides of the Irish Sea, they are far from understanding each other.

In Russia the Jews, while using their language among themselves, speak the Russian language as others do. The fact that they speak and understand the same language, does not prevent brutal hatred, and massacres are constantly occurring.

Use of the same language did not prevent misunderstanding between the North and South in our Civil War. It may be that the world is drifting toward one single speech. There is no very definite sign of it, although English does spread, steadily.

It is reasonable to suppose, that there was a wise purpose in multiplicity of tongues.

We are taught that different languages were inflicted upon human beings when they built the Tower of Babel, and tried to climb too high.

That statement is reverently accepted, at the same time the punishment may have had a useful purpose, for He chastiseth whom He loveth.

Certainly, difference in languages has added to the richness of literature. It is impossible to imagine Homer speaking French, Dante writing German, or Shakespeare expressing himself in "Esperanto."

Language is a living, growing thing, the same as a living body. Creating a real language with real life in it would be impossible as to create a real human baby.

Words date back thousands of years. Every one contains within it, if we could understand it, ages of human thought, emotion, expression.

Thought is the MOST important thing on earth, language is the TOOL with which thought works. Except with the right tools, the best thought could not work. It would therefore be impossible to substitute a made-to-order language for the languages that have been made through the centuries.

Our correspondent may suggest that it would be well for the world, if, in addition to the native language of each one, every man learned Esperanto so that he might talk to everybody else. There may be something in that.

But as a matter of fact nations do not go to war because their leaders fail to understand each other.

The heads of civilized nations, excepting some of our interesting statesmen in this country, all speak and understand the French language in addition to their own. There is no difficulty in understanding, but there is difficulty in making them WANT peace.

As to the masses of human beings, speaking different languages, when war comes, they are thrown against each other, in great armies of men that have never met, nor had a chance to speak.

One universal language might help to wipe out race and religious prejudice and hatreds. But it could only HELP.

Let an educated Chinese speak perfect English, infinitely better than the English of hoodlums among whom he might find himself, and the fact that he used their SPEECH would not save him from their CONTEMPT, or violence.

And so among the ignorant in all foreign lands, one evidently a stranger would not be saved from hatred, although he spoke perfectly the native tongue.

There can be no short cuts to civilization. Struggling, striving, learning, improving human beings will gradually develop better brains.

When science shall have made war impossible because of its great terror, and when human decency shall have made war impossible because of respect for Justice, war and hatred will end, even though the universal language may be postponed.

The Floating Hospital

The Boston Floating Hospital appeals to the public for $40,000. It needs $40,000 to carry on its work. Its work is to take the poor, hungry, sick little children out into the open air and sunlight of the ocean on board a steamboat and there help them to get well.

During the last few months the Floating Hospital has carried almost a hundred children who stayed permanently on the boat because their illness was protracted, while many hundreds of short stays on the boat have been afforded to other children whose illness is not so prolonged.

Can you imagine any charity more worthy and more practicable than this?

Every year the Boston American has eagerly taken the opportunity to urge those who can to help this good work.

It really should not depend upon private charity at all, but should be an obligation of the city of Boston. We are still too uncivilized to recognize the obligation, but the time will come when our descendants will regard us as barbarians for allowing little children who need the sea air to depend upon private charity to get it.

Help Family of Policeman Slain on Duty

Honor Memory of Officer Who Fearlessly Obeyed Orders by Contributing to the Boston American's Cuneo Fund

"Go get him."

Those words from his sergeant, that sent Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo to his death, deserve to rank in the memory of all Americans with the famous phrase, "Carry this message to Garcia."

Cuneo knew that he was going out to face a crazed man, armed with a loaded revolver, ready and willing to kill any policeman who ventured to arrest him on his insane mission.

Yet no soldier sent on a forlorn hope ever faced his duty more bravely, with less hesitation, or struggled more valiantly to the last to carry out orders, than did Andrew Cuneo, the soldier of the common good, who gave his life for the city.

Not a step was made with blinded eyes. Twice in the long course of his fifteen years of faithful service on "the force" Cuneo had been beaten almost to the point of death by thugs and strong-arm men he had been sent to arrest. He knew his danger.

Despite that he walked straight up to Philip F. Whelan, ignoring the glitter of insanity that gleamed from the eyes of the former policeman.

"You'll have to come to the stationhouse with me," Cuneo told the other. Whelan shot him.

Boston is to be congratulated that such men as Cuneo, loyal to the very death in their ideal of duty, are to be found on the police force of the city. He belonged to those who, having seen what their duty is, go straight to their mark, indifferent to every consideration of personal safety or profit.

When Cuneo was slain he left a family of nine children, many of them merely babies, and a wife, unprovided for. It is a hard world in which to raise nine kiddies on the pay of an honest police officer. He was buying his home, for he was a good citizen as well as a good policeman.

Now, unless the people of Boston, whom he served, come to the aid of those little ones and that widow, they will suffer.

That is why the Boston American has started the Andrew B. Cuneo Fund.

Contribute to the fund. Send all you can to the Boston American Cuneo Fund.

Out-Kaisering the Kaiser

Dangerous Character of Penrose Bill Shown in Action on Senator Walsh's Amendments

The dangerous character of the Penrose bill was emphatically disclosed when the Senate Finance Committee voted down the amendments offered by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts.

One of these amendments required the Secretary of the Treasury to give full publicity to his proceedings.

The other made the consent of the Congress necessary before the agreements made by the secretary became in force.

The country is now justified in suspecting anything if a coterie—we had almost said a conspiracy—which proposes to let one man make any arrangements he pleases with our foreign debtors, to let him make these arrangements in secret and without the knowledge of the American people, and to put whatever arrangements he thus secretly makes beyond the power of the Congress to reject or even to amend.

We are confident that no such brazen proposal to deprive a free people of self-government, through their representatives, was ever made in all history.

The Kaiser would not have dared to propose such a thing to the German Parliament.

See what this bill proposes to do.

It proposes to clothe one member of the Cabinet—an appointed department head, not elected by the people and not responsible to the people—with the full power to do as he pleases with the principal and interest of ten thousand million dollars.

That is more than the total cost of our government, including all our former wars and all our purchases of territory, from the inauguration of George Washington until the second inauguration of Woodrow Wilson.

That is more money than the richest government in the world ever had or ever owed prior to 1914.

The mere interest on this gigantic sum is $1,000,000 a day—and it has been piling up day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year, with no effort to collect a cent of it, while our people's prosperity has gone to smash and their taxes have become destructive for lack of the money owed by these defaulting debtors overseas.

The just compensation due to our soldiers is denied on the plea that the treasury has no money.

The very sick and crippled among them are disgracefully neglected on the same excuse.

And yet we can let foreign governments hold back a million dollars a day in interest alone, and put off paying even an instalment on ten thousand millions of principal, while they spend this money in keeping up huge military and naval establishments and in disturbing the peace of the world with their intrigues, secret diplomacies and downright militaristic and imperialistic villainies as bad as any with which the Kaiser was ever charged.

It is certain that an enormous majority of the American people want these foreign debts paid, and that they will not quietly submit to any Senatorial and banking scheme to defeat payment.

SELFISHNESS

You have got to expect to deny yourself pleasure if you would give real pleasure to those around you.

But the things you go without for the benefit of others should react to your ultimate gain.

The thought of being able to add to the enjoyment of someone else is enough of joy if you have a truly benevolent heart.

Pleasure you enjoy at the expense of others should not be accepted or sought by you.

If you will think it over you will see that you are not justified in taking what you deny another.

Most of us are selfish—cruelly selfish at times.

As long as we get what we want we give very little consideration to those in whom we should be most interested.

In many homes the husband and the wife do not enjoy the same things and one or the other goes ahead and does what affords him or her the most good time with no regard for the other's wishe.

Difference of opinion as to what is enjoyment should not give one or the other the right to think solely of self.

HOUSEWIVES STILL PAY HIGH PRICES

Annie Laurie Hears Food Never Was Selling So Low, But Its Cheapness Fails to Percolate Through the Kitchen Door.

By Annie Laurie

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Thirty thousand sacks of onions going into the Pacific ocean this week.

Thirty thousand sacks thrown away to keep them from spoiling and it's cheaper to dump them than to have them burned in the public incinerator—so it's blue water for them. And millions of people starving to death all over the world and some rather hungry folks right here in San Francisco today.

Food hasn't been so cheap in years," says a San Francisco market report of the current week. "Cucumbers, peas, beans, potatoes, squash, all these are at such wholesale levels that there is no high cost of living in that direction."

Good news, if we could only get the housekeepers to hear it.

Somehow, all this plenty and cheapness never seems to percolate through the kitchen door.

Rotting on Trees

The farmer knows that things are cheap; he knows it so well that many farmers are planning to let their vegetable crops stay in the ground this year. They can't make money enough out of them to pay a man's wages to help him gather the crop.

Over in Hayward, for instance, the cherries are rotting on the trees because the price offered the farmer was too low for any profit to speak of.

Cherries are twenty cents a pound in the retail market of San Francisco today and they are not particularly good cherries at that.

The only way you can get really good fruit in San Francisco today is either to pay a big price for it, or to join one of the dozen or more fruit clubs that are springing up all over the State and send your order to the fruit raiser direct and get your fruit by parcel post.

There's such a club at Elk Grove, at the Esperanza ranch. There's one in San Leandro. I saw some fruit from both these places yesterday, and I never knew there were such figs in the world—as big as a teacup, gold and white, and perfumed like a rose.

English walnuts as big as a woman's clenched fist. Cherries that were a revelation.

All this is laid down at your door parcel-post paid for 7 cents a pound. And English walnuts are 50 cents a pound in the retail market, and figs are 25 cents a dozen, and little, wizened-up figs at that.

There's talk of a free market here in San Francisco—why not?

The Seattle free market is a great success, though, of course, it had to fight for its life. But it's established now, and you couldn't get the regular customers to go back to the old system for a good deal.

"High cost of living"—no, it isn't as high as it was during the war. Why should it be?

We sent millions of tons of fruit and vegetables abroad during the war, and war prices always are high. But isn't it about time for them to come down, right now?

They are down to the farmer who raises the things.

Have they come down in anything like just proportion to the man in the street who buys these things for his family?

They have not.

Who is to blame?

"It is the American housewife," said a dealer to me the other day. "We wholesale things at a pretty fair price, and the retailer puts on all the traffic will bear and the American housewife will pay whatever he asks without even inquiring what it is.

"She waits till the end of the month for that and then grumbles when the bills are high.

"How many housekeepers read the market reports and ask the reason when the grocer doesn't cut prices when the wholesale rates take a tumble?

"Look at the candy shops. They are charging war prices. They told us that sugar was so high they had to do it. Sugar has gone way down now. Has candy?

I trow not—it's the same with ice cream.

"As long as people will let themselves be stung there will be plenty of busy bees to accommodate them.

"I'm glad this discussion has come up; we need some kind of re-adjustment somewhere; there's no doubt about that. Thinking men all over the country admit it. Did you see Barney Baruch's article on the problem of farm products in a current magazine?

"He says it's one of the most vital questions in the world today. He certainly ought to know.

"The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibilities of justification.'

"That's what Baruch says about it and I think he's absolutely right.

"But business is business and if a man can get twice what a thing is worth by merely asking for it I shan't sit up nights worrying about those who pay it to him."

Interesting point of view, isn't it?

Isn't there some way to systematize this great business of food and foodstuffs so that there would be something like enough for the average family at the price that the average family can pay and have enough profit for the farmer so that he can't go on?

We have learned new methods in business, new methods in education, new ways of transportation, new ways of communication, all in the last ten years. Isn't there some new way of handling farm produce that will put a little light into the situation?

In the meantime with farms getting rid of their poultry because feed is so high and with price of poultry low for farmer, try to get a good roast chicken for your Sunday dinner for less than $3 or $3.25.

You'll have trouble to do it.

Will Have Trouble.

With vegetables rotting in fields, with two more tons of beans destroyed within the three days, attempt to get a green beans to go with chicken—they will cost you 50 cents for two pounds and there won't be enough for two people in what you get out of them. It is the same with peas, and as for tomatoes they're absolutely out of the question at anything like a reasonable price.

I know a man who lives in New York and he's a well-to-do man, but when Summer comes on he runs over to Baltimore every week and over in the country around Baltimore he buys a bushel of sweet corn and a bushel of sweet potatoes and a bushel of green peas and a bushel of string beans and all kinds of fruit and he gets it for less than one-sixth of what he would have to pay in New York.

Yes, it costs him gasoline and time, but he gets some fun out of it and makes some presents to his friends—he says they've forgotten how fresh vegetables really taste.

And he gets even with market conditions and that's what he's really after. You see, he used to be a farmer, and he's one of the kind who "holds spite," as they say down in Maine.

Will we have to do that kind of thing here in San Francisco, where we should have the finest, cheapest and most equable market in the world? I hope not—don't you?
